List Events At Growers Show Here

The Eastern meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society, in Kingston for its three-day session, got underway Tuesday with a good attendance and will get under full steam today when some of the feature discussions of the session are scheduled.

This evening one of the social and informative sessions will take place at the Governor Clinton Hotel when at 6:30 the annual College of Agriculture banquet will be held.

List Speakers
Tonight at the banquet will be Alfred Zimmerman of Highland, Rockwood Berry, manager of the New York and New England Apple Institute, and Davis Blampied of Cornell, will be the speakers.

Today's session at the State Armory, Manor Avenue got off on schedule this morning with three local speakers on the program. Gary Hepworth, Milton, Jerry Hurd, Clintonville and Frank Tamburello of New Paltz, opened the morning session with a discussion on Grower Experience with Bulk Bins and Packing Out of Them.

Scheduled for this afternoon was a discussion on farm labor with Martin P. Catherwood, industrial commissioner, New York State Department of Labor, and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, participating.

Commissioner Catherwood's topic will be, "Farmers Can Have an Attractive Labor Policy," and Congressman Resnick's talk will be on "Problems and Solutions to Getting Off Shore Labor."

Farm labor during the harvest season is one of the fruit growers' difficult problems.

Mark Ladies Day
Today was also Ladies Day. The morning program included a coffee hour for the ladies at the Governor Clinton from 9:30 to 10 o'clock followed by a walking tour and visit to the old stone houses. Although the early morning was cloudy the weather turned favorable for the tour, "Glimpses of Old Kingston." The Ladies Day program was under the direction of Elizabeth D. Overbaugh, Ulster County Home Extension economist.

Attendance at the opening day Tuesday was described by William H. Paimor, Ulster County agricultural agent, Ulster County (Continued on Page 39, Col. 4)

Not Out of Woods: Ontario

Will Discuss Legal Points Over Busing

Dr. George Sullivan, superintendent of schools in the Ontario Central School District, said today that the operator of Lakeview Transit Inc. told the Board of Education Tuesday night that the company could no longer complete 22 transportation contracts it held with the school district.

Meanwhile, James E. Tobin, assistant superintendent in charge of transportation in the Kingston School District Consolidated, made known that school officials planned to confer today with Vincent G. Connelly, school attorney, to discuss legal technicalities regarding transportation contracts held by Lakeview Transit Inc. with the school district.

Attending the conference with him, Tobin said, will be Dr. W. Wendell Hoover, school superintendent; Ira M. Shaw, assistant superintendent for business management and Audrey J. Carpino, assistant supervisor of transportation.

Dr. Sullivan and Tobin both said transportation of pupils in areas contracted by Lakeview Transit was going along "on order schedule."

Tobin said that after today's conference with Attorney Connelly, the matter probably will be brought to the attention of State Education Department representatives regarding future decisions in the transportation situation.

19 of 105 Affected
Tobin noted that out of 105 bus routes in the school district only 19 major routes are affected with the developments involving the Lakeview Transit. He pointed out that 120 pupils have been transported to and from schools by the Lakeview firm, and he explained that the daily average attendance records in the city schools appears normal at the present time.

Dr. Sullivan said that Edward Miller, operator of the Lakeview Transit Inc., appeared last night before the Ontario Board of Education and declared the firm was in default in the operation of bus transportation lines in the district and no longer could complete the 22 contracts it held with the board.

Sullivan noted that this was accepted and the decision enabled the district to utilize the plan outlined with the insurance company, which must provide service under the performance plan with the board.

The school superintendent explained that the insurance company is prepared to carry out the transportation services and it has been doing so this week. (Continued on Page 14, Col. 1)

Garraghan Chides Some For Lack of City Budget

Push Increase For War Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's request for an extra $12.3 billion to finance the war in Vietnam is getting prompt attention in Congress.

The request reached the Capitol Tuesday. Today the Senate Armed Services and Defense Appropriations Committees hold a joint meeting to receive from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara more details on why the money is needed and how it would be spent.

Promise Action
The House Appropriations Committee not yet formally organized must originate the bill. Rep. George H. Mahon D-Tex. committee chairman promised speedy action.

"We will report a bill as soon as we reasonably can after the necessary hearings," Mahon told a reporter.

The acting senior Republican on Mahon's committee, Rep. Charles R. Jones of North Carolina agreed that prompt action was needed but cautioned against undue haste.

"We need to take a close look at how some of the money we have been providing has been spent," Jones said. "If they can make a good case for it, we'll give them all they request and maybe more."

Jonas said he was concerned over the huge spending on construction programs in Vietnam.

Cites $200 Billion
The ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee when all the costs of the war in Vietnam are finally met they "will be at least $200 billion."

Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., coupled this estimate with a protest that administration officials, whether intentionally or otherwise, "left the impression that this would be a comparatively short war."

"When all of our present commitments are met the minimum cost of the war will be at least $200 billion," Young said in a report to his constituents. "Our commitments of money and men are so great at the present time that we could not undertake another major conventional war."

Chance to Debate
The Vietnam appropriation will give the new Congress its first opportunity to stage a full debate on the administration's policies in Southeast Asia.

Such a debate raised last year, but Congress completed action late in March on a $13.1 billion Vietnam money bill. That bill went to Congress Jan. 19 and was passed without change.

1,000 Yanks Move Into Delta, Seen Pivotal War Spot

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — A reinforced battalion of American infantrymen moved into the Mekong Delta today, becoming the first large contingent of U. S. combat troops based in the area where some commanders say the Vietnam war will be won or lost.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland's headquarters announced that an artillery-supported battalion of the U. S. 9th Infantry division moved into a base camp 50 miles southwest of Saigon near the delta city of My Tho.

'Maneuver Battalion'
The contingent — estimated at 1,000 men — also included elements of a brigade headquarters in the start of a buildup of American strength in the rice bowl where until now operations have been largely by South Vietnamese forces.

The infantry contingent, described by a U. S. spokesman as a "maneuver battalion," joined engineer and support units which had moved into the delta base camp Jan. 10.

The entry of U. S. combat forces into the delta, where large sections are under Viet Cong domination, came during one of the periodic lulls in fighting in the Vietnam war.

The U. S. and South Vietnamese military commands reported only small ground skirmishes in widely scattered sectors.

Weather Hampers Raids
Over North Vietnam, monsoon rains and heavy cloud cover once again hampered U. S. air raids. American bombing pilots flew only 41 missions Tuesday.

The bad weather is expected to continue for the next six weeks. As it closed in, one of President Johnson's special advisers called for a continuation of American raids against the north. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former U. S. ambassador to Saigon, told newsmen the bombing of North Vietnam is an essential part of allied strategy.

JANUARY HEAT-WAVE—Miss Joan Woinoski of the Uptown Freeman Branch points at outdoor thermometer at First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 235 Fair Street, which a few minutes earlier Tuesday afternoon recorded 64, a record high for the day. At the same time the City Engineer's Office in City Hall reported a record high of 61, the highest for the day since 1935 when the engineers started keeping records. Monday afternoon the City Engineers recorded a record high of 58 which also was the high for that date. (Freeman photo by Wagenfohr.)

Violence Erupts in Midwest East Areas Basking; Twisters Kill Six

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least six persons were killed and hundreds injured by tornadoes in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois.

The violence erupted Tuesday as the Midwest basked in springlike weather that sent temperatures soaring into the mid-70s. It happened when a cold air mass collided with the unseasonably warm air.

The East, meanwhile, was basking in shirt-sleeve temperatures.

Teeners, Cop, Farmer
A teenage boy and two young girls were killed in Missouri and a 3-year-old boy died in Iowa. A policeman in Chicago and a farmer in downstate Illinois also died as a result of the fierce winds.

Damage was heaviest in the Kansas City, St. Louis and Orrick, Mo., areas where trees were uprooted, power lines felled, roofs caved in or were ripped off buildings, and various structures were demolished.

"I just heard the window blinds shaking and sounds like something falling," said B.M. Carpenter, superintendent of schools at Orrick, Mo. School clocks found amid the debris had stopped at 12:52 p.m.

The Orrick High School took the brunt of the first tornado reported. One student was killed and 14 other students, a teacher and two townspeople were injured.

Dies in School Corridor

Danny Gene Barber, 18, a senior died in the main corridor of the school. He apparently was suffocated under rubble from the school's roof which fell on him as he left his typing class.

"Glass was flying everywhere," said 17-year-old Faye Elliott, a classmate of Barber's. "Then it was over and all we could hear was the rain."

The storm front gathering strength spread over a wide area. Tornadoes ripped into sections of southeastern Iowa and killed 3-year-old Byron Swyer on the western outskirts of Fort Madison when one of the twisters wrecked a converted school house in which he and his family lived.

Damage Widespread

A number of persons were injured in Iowa and damage was widespread.

Protest Group Notes 'Justice Question' About Doomed Historic Highland House

Is there justice in the area of "Eminent Domain?" This is the question raised by Elwood Adams, author and teacher, regarding the pending doom of Highland's historic Half-Way House.

The building faces demolition by the state since it occupies land aimed for highway usage. A committee (The Committee for Preservation of Reuben-Deyo Half-Way House) with Mrs. S. Jeffrey Starin, of Newburgh, as chairman has been formed to fight the building's destruction. Adams issued the question of justice in a letter to Mrs. Starin which the committee has submitted to The Freeman for publication. In the chairman's words: "The committee was so impressed (by the letter) that we feel it should be shared with your readers."

It is reprinted below:

"Where do we put the road? What is the criterion of an (sic) historic building or landmark? Is there such a thing as justice in the area of 'Eminent Domain?' Can something of the past be preserved or must it all go up in polluted air or buried by the bulldozer?"

"In Highland there is an old stone house, the 'Halfway House.' It is related to and similar in construction and age to the those carefully preserved historic homes in New Paltz. It was once an Inn, a hostelry for stagecoach passengers who traveled between New York and Albany and often so crowded that the guests had to sleep in its (sic) garret. A State Education Department marker says the site was a drill ground for George Washington's troops in the Revolutionary War. The last moments of criminals once gave it the name 'Hangman's Inn'; the trees still stand. For years it has been in the attic of American memory."

"Now in the bright January air, denuded of its barns and stone silos it stands waiting for the last crushing impact of modern technology. The mathematics of the engineers and hearts of historians and architects stand at an impasse. And one wonders of the children who have thought for a moment of an age gone by that this house surely evokes even on casual perusal. For the building is of a Colonial Federal design that architects consider an American treasure. There are things that can not ever be recorded, an aura that can never be recaptured, a moment that can only be remembered. If we are to truly treasure life then we must treasure, like a piece of wedding cake, the last symbols of our history that they so uniquely represent. It is no argument (sic) that there are other cakes, for certainly there were other Dodo birds and passenger pigeons. This house has a positive continuity in the great history of the Hudson Valley, The United States, and the world.

"What a tragedy if our highways must be instruments of destruction through lack of imagination or rashness. There are so many thousands and thousands of miles of highways that have so honestly (sic) endeavored not only to be very safe but have majestically projected before our eyes the beauty of our country. But there have been many times when more resistance to a proposed solution would have stretched the versatility of the imagination and brought a greater dimension to the imperial highway. We think this to be true in the case of the Halfway House.

"Hangman's Inn" stands on the gallows. It is not asking for itself, for it has been too long in the service of mankind to be ungracious. Its crime is being in the way—25-feet in the way. In all respect to its long servitude and past record we must appeal to our governor to pardon this old house of native stone.

"For it is not just old and historic but it has been carefully preserved. If it shall be preserved then architects and artists may continue to enrich their art; school children may capture a more truthful sense of the past. It can remain an actual symbol like a 'Roman Road' to mark an age. As we drive down the great new stretch of highway, history passes but it must not be forgotten, it may just happen that we shall have to bare (sic) the guilt of acting in haste and charged with heartlessness if it is not preserved."

FIRE AFTERMATH—Workmen make repairs to electrical lines damaged in the $75,000 estimated fire Tuesday at the building housing Mission Wood Products Co. Inc., Washington Avenue and North Front Street. City firemen are investigating the blaze that broke out shortly after midnight yesterday. Insurance adjusters have called the building and its contents a complete loss. Three firemen were injured fighting the blaze. (Freeman photo by Wagenfohr.)

Rift Seen With Local Dem Chief May Huddle With Key Councilmen

Next action toward adoption of a city budget is expected to follow a meeting of key aldermen and Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, as proposed Tuesday night when the Common Council again recessed without approving either the mayor's budget or one presented by the council's Finance Ways and Means Committee.

Not offered for vote was the budget submitted by the mayor, and that submitted by the finance committee noting a tax rate cut of 73 cents under the mayor's, lost by a 7-6 vote with all Republican aldermen and two Democrats favoring the mayor's budget.

Laud's Budget
The mayor today rebuked the aldermen, who he considered responsible for lack of an approved city budget and held that the budget he submitted last month was "a good one." He thanked the Republican aldermen along with Democrats Peter J. Mancuso, Eighth Ward, and Clifford Sinsabaugh, Fifth Ward, who opposed the finance committee budget.

Changes proposed by the committee would reduce the total tentative budget as submitted by the mayor by $29,000. It would fix the tax rate at $69.80, which along with being 73 cents less than the mayor's would be $1.15 under the 1966 rate.

The proposed new budget would reduce the sum designated for the City of Kingston Laboratory from $688,500 to $621,300, a cut of $67,200. It would include $30,000 to cover a medical plan for all city employees and $20,000 to establish a city law department.

Developments at the meeting indicated a rift between Mayor Garraghan and Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, city Democratic leader, and in a statement after the meeting the mayor was critical of Dr. Gorman. The mayor was out of the city and unable to attend the meeting.

Minority Denied

Minority Leader John Machione (R) 12th Ward, said a minority report at the meeting was "deliberately sidetracked." He held that Alderman-at-Large Francis R. Koenig had failed to recognize John J. Naccarato (R) Third Ward, the finance committee's minority member.

After the finance committee budget was defeated, Machione held, Naccarato should have been permitted to give a report, and minority members of the council should have been permitted to call for a vote on the mayor's budget. The minority party, Machione said, had "every right to do this."

A motion calling for adjournment of the council was defeated, and it was then that the minority members of the council sought to be heard. The meeting was finally recessed.

Mayor Garraghan said after the meeting, "I certainly was surprised. My budget was a good budget. Any money spent for the laboratory is well spent. There is nothing wrong with the laboratory budget. He named several members of the board, who, he said, were extremely careful when it came to spending money and felt they could be trusted in their decision."

Cite $18,500 Item

Those opposing the laboratory budget were opposed to an $18,500 item in it for repair of a room and thought this too much.

This was also the opinion of Alderman Robert Gallo, (D) Ninth Ward, finance committee chairman. Alderman Edward Norton (D) Seventh Ward, and John J. Naccarato (R) Third Ward are the other members.

Resnick Critical Of GOP's 'Union'

The Republican Party's "State of the Union" message was attacked in the House of Representatives Monday as a "glib attempt to make the conservative Republican duck take on the appearance of a liberal swan." But the man who made the charge, Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, said that "even Mandrake the Magician in his heyday couldn't pull off a stunt like that."

Hits Promises, Record
In a stinging and sometimes sarcastic rebuke to the Republican leadership of both Houses, the New York Democrat directed his fire at what he termed the "incredibly chasm" between the G.O.P.'s promises and its voting record. Selecting key issues from the Republican messages delivered at the beginning of both the 89th and 90th Congresses, Resnick cited numerous examples of the party's failure to vote for the very principles and programs it claims to support. He challenged Republican Congressmen to "put their votes where their leader's mouth was."

Resnick defended the Republicans' right to express their political views to the American people. "But," he said, "I take issue with them when they speak out in favor of programs that they consistently vote against. I just cannot sit by and allow these Alice in Wonderland tales to be recited to us without answering back."

The Congressman accused the Republican leadership of committing a "cruel hoax" on the American people, by "appearing to favor Social Security, Medicare, Federal Aid to Education, minimum wage legislation and War Against Poverty. They tell the people one thing, and then vote exactly the opposite way."

Resnick said the Republicans' own voting record provided the proof of their insincerity. "90 per cent of them voted for the motion which would have doomed the War on Poverty before it ever got started. 73 per cent opposed final passage of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. 73 per cent of House Republicans continued their historic opposition to minimum wage legislation by voting to recommit. And the great majority opposed the Civil Rights Act of 1966, especially Title IV which would have opened new housing opportunities for Negroes."

Notes Little Change
Resnick charged that in 1965, after 20 years of obstruction, 93 per cent of House Republicans still voted to kill the Medicare bill by sending back to committee. "While the Democratic Party was listening to the voice of the people, the Republican Party was listening to the voice of the American Medical Association," Resnick said. "This shows how little the Republican Party has really changed since 1936 when they were at least honest enough to openly admit they were conservative."

Senator Everett Dirksen's foreign policy section of the Republican message also came under fire by Resnick. He said the Senator's "intransigence" and "Berlin-wall mentality" would condemn future generations "to a legacy of perpetual world tension, hostility, mistrust, and the continuing threat of nuclear warfare."

He strongly supported President Johnson's proposals to expand East-West trade. Congressman Resnick said the Republican leaders are trying to convince the American people that "their party should be given the opportunity to alter programs that would never have been enacted in the first place if they had their way. They are standing by with their hammers and saws, trying to look like an alteration crew. But they're really a wrecking crew. They have consistently voted to wreck the hopes and opportunities of our workers, our poor, our children, and our elderly."

"To be perfectly honest," Congressman Resnick said, "on the basis of Mr. Ford's statement, I was ready to embrace him as a fellow member of the Democratic Party. But then I remembered the many, many times I have sat here in the House and watched his party do everything in its power to try to delay, obstruct, cripple, gut, and even kill most of the legislation that was written for the purpose of realizing the objectives the Republicans now claim they believe in."

Congressman Resnick lashed out at the absence in the Republican message of any reference to the decaying condition of American cities. While acknowledging that House Minority Leader Gerald Ford had called for a "massive effort to reduce crime by attacking poverty, inadequate education, slums, and racial discrimination," Resnick charged that "the Republican Party has consistently voted against the one essential ingredient to mount this massive effort—money."

Challenges Leadership
Resnick said he had written privately to Minority Leader Ford advising him of his intended speech, and inviting his presence on the House floor to respond to the Democrat's criticism.

The Republican leadership was challenged by Resnick to live up to its pledge of support of the social and economic programs outlined in the domestic section of their "State of the Union" message. "If they do not," he warned, "I, for one, intend to continue to remind the American people of the ever-widening chasm between Republican promises and Republican performance."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Antonio Stradivari method of making fine violins remains something of a secret, according to The World Almanac. The perfection of these famed instruments was probably due in part to the superb quality of wood and varnish used in construction. So perfect were the violins of the 16th and 17th century with their smooth texture, soft orange to red color and excellent tonal quality, that modern makers have not been able to equal them, in the opinion of most experts.

Artist Was Kingston Native

UCCC Professor Plans Book On Painter John Vanderlyn

A visit to Kingston's Senate House Museum has led an Ulster County Community College professor to embark on an extensive research project into the life of John Vanderlyn, a Kingston native who became one of America's foremost painters.

The professor is Dr. Salvatore Mondello, 60 Roosevelt Avenue, Kingston, an associate professor of history at UCCC and chairman of the Division of Social Science. He formerly taught at Rider College and Rutgers University in New Jersey and joined the initial UCCC faculty when the college first opened in September, 1963.

No Contemporary Writings

"When I first came to Kingston, I visited the Senate House Museum," Dr. Mondello said. "I saw the portraits by Vanderlyn and was impressed by them. I asked Mrs. Charles Arnold if there were any contemporary writings on Vanderlyn and she said there weren't. I was shocked to learn that such a significant artist should be ignored by writers."

With his interest aroused, Dr. Mondello inquired and learned that Vanderlyn's correspondence was at the museum. He immediately made arrangements to look through it.

"I read through the correspondence," he said, "and the more I went into it the more fascinated I became."

Dr. Mondello became so interested that he decided that he wanted to do research on Vanderlyn. To aid him in this project he received an award last summer from the State University of New York for this important research.

As a result of this research, Dr. Mondello has written an article entitled, "John Vanderlyn, 1775-1852," which has been accepted for publication in April, 1968, in the New York Historical Society Quarterly.

This is the first general article that has been written on Vanderlyn, but for Dr. Mondello it is only the beginning. He now plans to write a full-length biography on Vanderlyn and has received encouragement in this project from noted art historians.

Asks Residents Help

For this extensive project, Dr. Mondello said he would appreciate cooperation of residents in the Kingston area.

"I would like to see any significant documents relating to the life of John Vanderlyn that people in the Kingston area might have," he said, "and I also would be interested in viewing any Vanderlyn paintings that local residents might have in their homes.

Dr. Mondello said his research has disclosed these facts about John Vanderlyn:

The family was established in New York State by John Vanderlyn's grandfather, Peter Vanderlyn, who came to New York from Holland in the early 18th Century. Peter was a physician and portrait painter in Albany and Kingston. He also served as chorister in the Old Dutch Church in Kingston and married the daughter of the church's pastor.

Peter's son, Nicholas Vanderlyn, became a sign and house painter in Kingston. Nicholas' son was John Vanderlyn, who was born in Kingston. At an early age John showed amazing talent as an artist. He was discovered by Aaron Burr, who agreed to serve as his patron. Burr sent Vanderlyn to Philadelphia to study with Gilbert Stuart, then a prominent artist. After this training, Vanderlyn was sent by Burr with money and letters of recommendation to Paris. There Vanderlyn studied with Vincent, a well known painter in the French Neo-Classical tradition.

Painted Niagara Falls

Vanderlyn returned to the United States at the beginning of the 19th Century and immediately began painting portraits of noted figures in New York State. At the suggestion of Burr he also traveled to Niagara Falls and made sketches which many contend are the first ever made of the falls.

In 1803, Vanderlyn returned to Europe and soon reached his peak as an artist. In Paris in 1804, Vanderlyn painted a portrait of Chancellor Robert R. Livingston, a prominent Hudson Valley resident, which has been called brilliant by Oliver Larkin, a noted art historian.

At this time, Vanderlyn also painted his famous "Marius." The painting was judged the top one of 1,200 exhibited in the Louvre in Paris and won for Vanderlyn a gold medal from Napoleon.

In 1812, while still in Europe, Vanderlyn painted a nude painting entitled, "Ariadne," which E. P. Richardson, a recognized art historian, has called "the most successful ideal nude produced by American Neo-Classicism." With such recognition, Vanderlyn was ranked with Benjamin West and Gilbert Stuart as a foremost American artist of that period.

At Museum in Gotham

Vanderlyn returned to the United States in 1815 and soon established the New York Rotunda, the first art museum in New York City. There Vanderlyn exhibited panoramas which drew considerable praise.

One of these panoramas, showing the palace and gardens at Versailles, was painted by Vanderlyn in an old barn in Kingston. It is one of the few panoramas still surviving today and came into possession of the Senate House Association. Because there was a lack of room to display this panorama, the association donated it to the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, where it last was exhibited to the public in 1936.

the office of Mayor John Lindsay in New York City. It frequently is shown in pictures taken when Mayor Lindsay conducts press conferences in his office.

Heavily in Debt

Vanderlyn suffered a tragic blow in 1829 when New York City took the New York Rotunda away from him to use it for court purposes. The art museum hadn't been a money maker and Vanderlyn had gone heavily into debt on it.

The loss of the museum embittered Vanderlyn, but he still was without his achievements. In 1832 he began a full length portrait of George Washington for the Federal Government. This painting took two years to be completed and now is on display in the U. S. House of Representatives in Washington. Another significant painting for the U. S. Government in this era was one showing the landing of Columbus now on display in the Capitol Rotunda in Washington.

Wanted U. S. Support

In his declining years, Vanderlyn hoped to see a National Gallery of Arts established in Washington, and asked the Federal Government to undertake this project. The government refused, greatly upsetting Vanderlyn. In seeking this gallery, he was one of the first persons in the U. S. to contend that the government would have to support the fine arts or the United States never would attain greatness as a world power.

Vanderlyn died in Kingston in September 1852, totally poverty stricken.

Dr. Mondello feels Vanderlyn deserves recognition as one of America's top artists in the nation's early years and is working to achieve this recognition for him in the biography he now is working on.

Wants to Replace Teacher-Loyalty Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Sen.

John J. Marchi, R - Staten Island, plans to offer new legislation to replace the teacher-loyalty law that was thrown out Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The veteran legislator said Tuesday he was making a thorough study of the high court's ruling against the Feinberg Law, a measure which authorized public schools and colleges in New York State to refuse to hire communists or other persons regarded as subversive.

He noted that, while ruling the law unconstitutional, the high court asserted that the state had a legitimate interest in protecting its educational system from subversives.

At the same time, the court said, "that purpose cannot be pursued by means that broadly stifle fundamental personal liberties when the end can be more narrowly achieved."

Marchi said his legislation would clearly spell out prohibited activities and would generally be more precise.

"It is simply inconceivable," Marchi said, "that we remain passive and unconcerned in the face of conspiratorial activities."

Cicero Man Killed

CICERO, N.Y. (AP)—George S. Hamilton, 90, of this Syracuse suburb, was killed Tuesday in a fall down the cellar stairs at his home.

Hamilton had been dead about 10 hours when his body was found by a son, Louis, Tuesday night. The Onondaga County medical examiner's office said.

One of Highest Award Workers $266,382, Were Burned on Job

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Two workers, burned severely in 1959 on a construction job here, have been awarded $266,382, one of the highest awards ever reported by an Erie County jury.

A Supreme Court jury, which returned the verdicts Tuesday, awarded Leo G. Quinn, 48, of Rochester, $123,700, and Stephen P. Glynn, 44, of nearby Tonawanda $142,682.

The defendants in the trial, which lasted three weeks, were the State Power Authority and Uhl, Hall & Rich of Boston, Mass., supervising engineers for the Authority on the Niagara Power Project here.

Glynn operated a crane and Quinn was nearby to assist him. The two men kept in contact with each other by a sound-powered telephone line.

The plaintiffs charged they were burned when 13,000 volts arched from overhead electric wires down the crane boom and the telephone line.

Glynn suffered massive burns about the head, some loss of hearing and loss of a finger and part of a thumb. He was unable to do the type of work he did. Quinn suffered some loss of hearing and massive burns on the head and the lower abdomen resulting in permanent injury.

During its run, Expo '67, the Montreal fair, will stage Canada's greatest military tattoo with nearly 2,000 troops.

North Vietnam... A Guerrilla Society

HANOI, North Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnam is a guerrilla society.

The people here have been at war, mostly guerrilla war, for 25 years, and only the older ones remember a season of peace.

Conditions Character, Economy

And this long visit of war not only has conditioned the character of the people, but also the nature of their economy.

The adults, and many teenagers, are trained to use a rifle or a machine gun.

You could say that the modern guerrilla society was established when the Japanese occupied Vietnam during World War II. The Japanese collaborated with the French residents, or most of them, and a Viet underground was fashioned to fight them both.

Later, the guerrilla society took on the French, and the world knows of the historic battle of Dien Bien Phu, where the Vietnamese astounded the French by transporting heavy artillery and other needs of war across the mountains and engaging the French.

Now, in the conflict against fellow countrymen in the south and the Americans, the North Vietnamese enlist the same tactics, the tactics of the guerrilla fighter. Usually the soldiers move in small units, and only at night, and convoys are brief, and not strung out up and down the highway, to provide as small and mobile a target as possible. The soldiers, as well as a colonel from what serves as the chiefs of staff, tell you of the same conviction: they believe they can outlast the Americans.

Think U.S. Will Weary

In frank conversation, these men express what appears a knowing respect for the economy and the military of the United States. But they speak of a belief that, in time, the Americans are going to weary of war.

Gabrielli Named To Temporary Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today designated Justice Domenick L. Gabrielli of the State Supreme Court to serve temporarily on the court's Appellate Division.

Gabrielli, 53, a resident of Bath, in Steuben County, has served on the Supreme Court since July 1961.

State law provides that the governor may designate additional justices to serve on the Appellate Division when the court certifies that it needs extra assistance.

such as this one, although it may take 10 or 20 years.

You see the influence of a protracted war upon the society everywhere. Almost every school has been closed in Hanoi, but the schools, in smaller units, have been relocated to the provinces. The same is true of the university.

You hear, and you see some evidence, that North Vietnam does not need much industry to carry on the war at the present level. The heavier weapons of war seem to come from the Soviet Union, lighter weapons from China, some military aid from other countries. Food is shipped in from various nations.

Indeed, if one word could describe both the nature of the North Viet military and the economy of the country, the word surely would be "mobility."

Loses Anchor Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Liberian ship Lake Palourde lost its anchor and chain — for some unexplained reason — while entering Los Angeles harbor last Nov. 15.

After two days of hard work, divers found the 15-ton anchor on the harbor bottom.

Now it's happened again. Crewmen said last Sunday's storm wrenched loose the anchor and part of its chain while the Lake Palourde was discharging 450,000 barrels of oil off Huntington Beach.

GAP TO BE BRIDGED

The real question for businessmen is not how to stop the growth of government, said Henry Ford II the other day. To meet the nation's growing problems and aspirations, both government and business must of necessity expand their responsibilities and activities.

"The only real question is which of them should do what."

Business and government must pull together for the common interest, said this spokesman for an industry which is currently sweating out the need to accommodate itself to new government-directed safety requirements. And the only way to get them to do that, to keep them from constantly colliding with each other as they work on common problems, is "to draw boundaries between them."

"By and large," said Ford, "government does well when it works in harmony rather than at cross-purposes with the dynamic forces of free enterprise. . . . It does well when it sets the broad rules of the game, and it does poorly when it seeks to control business activities in detail."

"By and large, business does well when it sticks to what it knows best and has the strongest incentives for accomplishing. Business cannot eliminate unemployment, but each business can do its competitive best to expand its own sales and employment. Business cannot stop inflation, but every business can strive for greater efficiency and lower costs."

There is no argument here. We should not, however, let the word "boundaries" deceive us into thinking there can be any hard and fast delineation between the responsibilities and activities of government and business. Boundaries drawn against the geography of human affairs are by nature ambiguous, fluid and temporary.

There was a time when there seemed to be defined boundaries, when Calvin Coolidge could say that the business of government was business — that is, to keep its hands off "the dynamic forces of free enterprise."

Depression, war, the emergence of a host of national problems like racial justice, urban blight, pollution and zooming population have swept away all kinds of old boundaries.

What we need today is perhaps not so much boundaries, with business on one side and government on the other, as bridges between the two.

Actually, Ford's speech, especially in its rejection of the "good-guys-versus-the-bad-guys" approach to business-government relations, laid a good foundation for such a bridge. The foundation should begin to be built upon.

HEALTH TIP: EAT FOOD

Noting the boom in vitamin sales and concerned lest some health enthusiasts may be overdoing a good thing, the Food and Drug Administration warns that excessive use of vitamins can cause hypervitaminosis.

Now, whatever this is, it has an ominous ring—besides being hard to spell or pronounce—and the prudent person will try to avoid it.

But if you do come down, or up, with reasonably certain that in an amazingly short time you will be seeing on your television screen a sprightly commercial for a brand new vitamin that will positively NOT cause this hyper-whatever-it-is, but, in fact, just may cure it!

Meanwhile; if you find yourself feeling a little hyper- etc., you can always go back to plain old food until you feel sluggish again—a condition probably known to the trade as unhypermavitaminosis.

OBJECT LESSON FOR MAO

It was a Chinaman, wrote Charles Lamb in "A Dissertation Upon Roast Pig," who gave the world the art of cooking.

It all began when a bumbling fellow named Bo-bo accidentally burned down his father's house, along with the family pig and its litter. As news of the delicious discovery spread, dwellings were seen being

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
THE REPUBLICANS' SEAL OF UNITY

The Republicans went a long way toward uniting their party for the 1968 elections when they made Senator George Murphy of California chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

True enough, Murphy is personally a conservative. He was originally opposed for the chairmanship by Senator Hugh Scott, the Pennsylvania liberal. So you might think that partisanship would not matter who got the job. But Murphy, unlike Hugh Scott, has schooled himself rigorously over the years in the art of being a Republican first and an ideological partisan second. In trying for victory, Murphy can suspend his prejudices.

Hugh Scott, who can be a delightful fellow when he so chooses, has, of late years, developed a particularly abrasive quality whenever the word "conservative" is mentioned in his hearing. He sees Rat Finks under the bed, and Goldwaters behind every tree. He has carried on a vendetta against the conservative group in the Young Republican National Federation, calling them young hellsions. If he had been made chairman of his party's Senatorial Campaign Committee, no conservative Senator running for re-election in 1968 would have felt very comfortable.

The difference between Murphy and Scott is that candidates of both camps know for an absolute certainty that George Murphy will do his best to win for them once they have gotten through the Republican primaries. It was Murphy's example as a supporter of Eisenhower, Nixon, and even ultra-liberal Tom Kuchel in California battles, that led to the adoption of the so-called Eleventh Commandment, "Thou shalt not speak evil of another Republican," in the recent Reagan campaign for governor. Reagan pays a fervent tribute to Murphy's cannyness in his autobiography, "Where's the Rest of Me?"

Although they have been friends since Screen Actors' Guild days, Murphy did not take Reagan's part in the primary fight for nomination for governor of California. He wanted to be in a position to fight convincingly for whoever won the primary. But once Reagan was the nominee Murphy insisted on working for a united front for November. And now that Reagan is governor, Murphy has let his prized Washington assistant, Sandy Quinn, go to California to work for Reagan in Sacramento. Murphy is a guarantee that the financials will not succeed in trying to drive a wedge between Reagan and Republican Lieutenant Governor Robert Finch, who ran ahead of his ticket in November.

When Barry Goldwater was chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, he did yeoman work for the party in speaking and in fund-raising. But incidentally, he also managed to build himself up as the logical conservative choice for the Presidential nomination. Murphy will bend over backward to keep from using his own position as Senatorial Campaign chairman for personal aggrandizement that might hurt any Republican's chances for any office in 1968. When Everett Dirksen, knowing Murphy's Hollywood expertise, asked the new Republican Senatorial chairman to pick the participants for a recent TV show, Murphy might have included himself as leader of the panel. Instead, he put Senator Peter Dominick of Colorado in charge, knowing that Dominick is up for reelection in 1968 and could benefit from the exposure.

Murphy earned the chairmanship of the campaign committee through his prodigious fund-raising drive for the Republicans in 1966. In spite of an operation on his throat, he raised close to two-and-a-quarter million dollars for the party. He did all this as a freshman Senator.

With all deference to Senator Hugh Scott's ability, the Pennsylvania liberal was well advised to bow out of the contest for the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee chairmanship when Senator John Tower of Texas withdrew his own candidacy and threw his support to Murphy. Scott is still very active in trying to take over the Young Republican organization for the liberals. This would have made him a divisive figure in a job that demands a cessation of personal combat, to party infighting, for there are a number of Republicans who support the Young Republican National Federation presidential aspirations of conservative Jack McDonald, a cousin of Representative William Brock of Tennessee, as against Scott's candidate, Jim Betts of Ohio. Scott could have been drawn into warfare with Republican Senators over the Young Republican fight. Incidentally, Murphy gets along very well with Hugh Scott, which is the final proof of his fitness for his job.

Good Lighting, Proper Position Prevent Eyestrain

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When it is an effort to bring what you are looking at into proper focus the result is eyestrain. Paradoxically the most severe symptoms of eyestrain often accompany a very slight visual error. This is because, if the error is too great, you give up trying to make out the details but, when the error is small, your eyes try to adjust and you are not aware of the effort involved.

Eyestrain may also be caused by looking too long at murals or other art objects that are placed high above your head or by sitting too close to a stage or movie screen that requires you to look up. It does not result from prolonged viewing of a television screen at eye level or slightly lower.

A third cause of eyestrain is improper lighting—light that is too bright or not bright enough. You should not, for example, read with direct sunlight falling on the page. When artificial light is used it should be diffused coming from several sources so that both glare and dark shadows are eliminated.

Prolonged eyestrain may cause a headache over or between your eyes, a smarting of your lids, blurring of near vision, or a feeling of fatigue. The treatment is based on such measures as having even minor errors of refraction corrected by carefully fitted glasses, positioning your body so that any prolonged looking you must do will require minimum of upward or sideways movement of your eyeballs and reading by a soft light. Place a mirror on the page you are reading and if a lighted bulb is seen in the mirror you are getting too much glare.

Q—What are the first symptoms of cirrhosis of the liver and what is the final outcome?

A—Although once thought to be caused only by heavy drinking, we now know that any chronic disease of the liver of which alcoholism is only one may cause cirrhosis. Because cirrhosis is a gradual replacement of functioning liver cells by scar tissue it is hard to say just when it begins. The symptoms, if any are loss of appetite, easy fatigability and loss of weight, but none of these symptoms point specifically to cirrhosis.

If untreated the disease is fatal, but early treatment with a nourishing diet, vitamin supplements and abstinence from alcohol will halt its progress.

put to the torch all over the Celestial Kingdom. This went on for dynasties until some sage discovered that it was possible to roast a pig without burning down the house.

It is unlikely that Mao Tse-hung is familiar with English literature, but he has done nothing less than set all China aflame in an attempt to roast his rivals. In so doing, he is not behaving much differently from the emperors and warlords who preceded him.

The world wonders how many more ages must pass before the Chinese realize there are better ways of running a country.

"You Have a Visitor from Moscow, Mr. Chairman!"

Washington News

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The pro-Mao, anti-Mao splits within the Chinese Red Army are old and deep.

Even in the famous Long March of the 1930s, Chu Teh and his troops split off from Mao for a period in deep disagreement with Mao. Chu took his forces in protest to a different province. It was only later the two men were reconciled. Then Chu joined Mao in Yenan.

Chu Teh is famous not only as a Red Chinese military man. He is also known as the chief architect—just after Mao—of what is known to Westerners as the Mao Tse-tung theory of guerrilla insurgency.

In the days of Yenan, which Mao and his fellow leaders look on as the time when they were all closely united in a common cause, there was strong dissatisfaction among the top Red Chinese military men.

During the time I served as a U. S. liaison officer at Yenan, two of the seven top army leaders in Communist China at that time privately told me Mao's group didn't trust them. The marshal who at that time commanded Red China's major group of armies—perhaps a fourth of all Mao's mainline forces—was one of those men.

This military man—who now is one of the top nine in Mao's political government—told this reporter personally at his Yenan cave that Mao kept him in Yenan to keep an eye on him. He wanted to be out with his troops. But Mao wouldn't have it that way.

Another famous Red general complained to me bitterly about Mao's political agents. They bugged him continuously.

Remember that these complainers are men who were then and have been for the past two decades members of Mao's own inner circle.

In addition, there were a number of key men of the Yenan days who have since been purged. The one known best to this reporter was Peng Teh Hual.

In Yenan, some 20 years ago, Peng was deputy chief of all Red Chinese armies. He disagreed with Mao and was ousted. But he still has many followers.

Tight as the bamboo curtain has been, there have been leaks through Hong Kong, Tibet, Japan. Reports through these sources the past dozen years tell of serious rifts within the Red Chinese army. Documents have been captured in Asia which verify these rifts.

The truth is that the Chinese Red army is not a solid, monolithic organization. It is filled with stresses and strains. Its leadership is divided.

There are serious differences in ideology. There are personal loyalties which divide these men into competing groups.

As long as the Chinese Reds were fighting a common enemy — the Japanese — these cracks could be kept under control. When the Communists were consolidating their power, these cracks again were covered as the Reds worked to weed out the forces that were against them.

But when things began to go bad—as in Korea where military weaknesses showed up, in the split with Soviet Russia where the army lost a powerful ally and in the bumbles of the Great Leap Forward — the discontent grew greater.

The discontent has intensified in the last year or so as army leaders grew alarmed at new agricultural shifts, which cut heavily into the morale of their troops and foreign policies which seemed likely to pit Chinese armies weak in modern arms against Western troops with advanced weapons.

These divisions within the Red army are not likely to be remedied within the near future. They can only be patched over.

The young girl kept a diary. An honest one. Now it has been published by Harper & Row and is called "The House of Tomorrow."

What is it like to be pregnant and unmarried and alone? The anonymous author, who calls herself Jean Thompson, paints a stark portrait that should be read by all high school and college students.

Listen:

"I've slept more these past two weeks than ever before in my whole life. But then I wake up and there it is again, that horrible fact. I am pregnant. I am going to have a baby. . . . I think I'm going crazy. I've got to talk to someone. But who?"

"I've got to keep this from mother and dad. I can just see mother flying home from France all upset. I can't stand thinking of all those tears and that shame, shame' business. And Daddy—it would just kill him. Not that he's approved of anything I've done for the last several years. . . ."

"What if I were dead? I've thought about it and will probably think about it again. So simple. No more problems. Nobody embarrassed. But I don't have the right to kill the baby. That would be murder. . . ."

"Strange, my mother is a professor's wife, but I don't think I've had a real talk with her for years. She is sweet and all that, but she's as narrow-minded as they come. I guess Daddy thinks I'm a lost cause. What bugged me was the way his students told me how lucky I was to have a father like him. Little did they know that whenever we got into a discussion at home, it always turned into an argument. . . ."

"I've got to start looking. But where? To Gene? No, I've already burned that bridge. I think he loves his wife. I know he loves his kids. He looked so miserable and lost the night he came into the cafe near Harvard Square where our gang hangs out. I knew at once he wanted to talk to me."

"When I look back on it, I see that we were never again as close as we were those first couple of hours. Gene walked me home that night. I've got all the things I've worked so hard for. He said, squeezing my hand, 'Suddenly, it isn't important any more. Nothing. I've got to find myself again.' In my apartment we made love by candlelight and listened to Joan Baez."

Later, in desperation, she phoned the Salvation Army. A pleasant female voice said: "Can I help you?" The girl, sobbing, said: "You sure can. I'm going to have a baby and I'm not married and I'm nearly broke."

There were 50 girls in one shelter. A sad brunette was 14 years old, and mentally retarded. With others, it was a second offense. To some, it was a cocoon suspended in time and nourished on cigarettes and nail-biting. The big revolving question was always the same: To keep? To pervert? To look at the baby? To hold it tenderly or to turn away from it at once?

Time to think: "I remember last summer. I helped mother clean the attic and we found the baby clothes she has saved all these years. Mother held the little dresses and shawls up and

LBj Takes Credit for Boom But Denies Inflation Blame

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, in his budget message to Congress, assumes on behalf of his administration full responsibility for the economic condition of the country. Few presidents have been as pointedly political in claiming credit for a boom, though taking the precaution at the same time to blame inflationary trends and recessions on circumstances beyond their control. The president says:

"The economic performance of the past three years did not just happen. It grew out of the ingenuity, hard work, and imagination of all parts of the American society. But the one element which provided a catalyst for all the rest was the imaginative and flexible use of federal fiscal policy."

The fact that the president is justifying as a "catalyst" the artificial stimulant introduced by the government itself. He declares:

Stimulated Economy

"In 1964, and again in 1965, tax reductions were enacted which gave a strong stimulus to the economy. Idle capacity came into operation, new capacity was built, and both the numbers and productivity of the nation's workforce rose sharply."

"In late 1965 and early 1966, however, as the economy rapidly approached full capacity operation, inflationary pressures began to develop. On two occasions, I proposed, and the Congress promptly enacted, tax changes aimed at dampening those pressures."

The president argues that he has made every effort to postpone, stretch out or eliminate all but the most essential federal expenditures and that these actions "contributed to a welcome moderation of inflationary pressures in the latter part of 1966."

Mr. Johnson is well aware that there are many economists and also members of Congress who would like to see the federal government economize and not spend so much money for political purposes. But he attempts to refute the argument as follows:

"The economy, the budget and the aims of our society would be jeopardized by either a larger tax increase or by large slashes in military or civilian programs. I have reviewed these programs carefully. Waste and nonessentials have been cut out. Reductions or postponements have been made wherever possible. The increases that are proposed have been carefully selected on the basis of urgent national requirements."

Mr. Johnson says he welcomes careful scrutiny by Congress of all the spending programs, and then significantly comments:

"But it is my judgement that major cuts cannot be made without serious impairment to vital national objectives—in defense, in education, in health, in the rebuilding of our cities, and in the attack on poverty."

Guns and Butter

What this amounts to is a statement that the United States can afford "guns and butter, too." It means that the President does not recommend the sacrifice of any domestic programs, and his administration has already committed itself to the spending of unprecedented sums of money.

Only two years ago, there was a lot of talk about the possibility that the budget for fiscal year 1966 might go over 100 billion dollars. President Johnson called up with a figure of $9 billion dollars when he submitted his "administrative budget" to Congress in January 1965. But today the spending figures for the fiscal year 1968 have risen to 135 billion dollars in the "administrative budget," 169.2 billion in the "national income budget," and 172.4 billion in the so-called "cash budget."

Whatever "budget" is selected, the truth is the government is spending far more than it is taking in, and it is doing so deliberately, on the theory that this is the way to maintain the economy in a substantially healthy condition. The question is how long will the argument last and when will public confidence in the monetary unit weaken as the dollar shrinks still further in purchasing power and inflation wreaks its damage on many millions of persons with fixed incomes.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Dr. Norwand I wanted to have lots and lots of children some day. He said: 'Great. Just don't come back here to have them.'

A week later: "I looked at him for the last time. He was asleep. I wanted to hold him, and I remembered Carrie's words: 'Don't hold him if you're going to give him away.' . . . He was never mine. I've just been responsible for him for a little while."

I gave "The House of Tomorrow" to my teen-age blondes to read. They came away from it wiser and a little sadder. They didn't know that love is ecstasy or despair, and nothing between. At the end of the affair, the girl picks up the check, and pays. . . .

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Like Socrates of old, Sen. J. W. Fulbright tries to be a gadfly on the conscience of the community.

But sometimes there seems to be more buzz than bite. The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, has been President Johnson's steadiest critic on foreign affairs. He flailed Johnson for his handling of the crisis in the Dominican Republic.

Has Never Let Up

He has never let up on Johnson's handling of the war in Vietnam. Now he has put his ideas together in a just-published book, "The Arrogance of Power." It's an enlarged version of his lectures at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies last year. But Fulbright as a critic has been sometimes vague and, to this writer, unrealistic. This shows up in his book, too.

As an example of some of his past unrealism: More than a year ago the Red Chinese outlined a plan for the conquest of the world by communism: revolutionaries in underdeveloped countries could be used to encircle and defeat capitalist nations.

Nevertheless, Fulbright suggested trying to make a deal with Red China under which this country would withdraw its forces from Southeast Asia if the Chinese would let their neighbors alone.

The trouble with this is that the Chinese, while proclaiming innocence, could help in a concealed way the Communists in a backward country, particularly one bordering Red China, to take it over. And so on, step by step.

Now in his book Fulbright outlines a plan for restoring peace in Vietnam although, if you follow him to the end, it's a plan which could wind up solving nothing and leave the United States completely baffled.

Idea in Nutsell

Boiled down, this is his idea: The United States, South Vietnam, the Viet Cong and Communist North Vietnam should try to work out peace. The American side would first seek a cease-fire and stop the bombing of North Vietnam.

In this arrangement Fulbright seems to put the Viet Cong on the same plane of power with North Vietnam, although the Johnson administration considers North Vietnam the main adversary.

And, Fulbright suggests, the United States should pledge to remove its forces from South Vietnam. That is what Johnson did at the Manila Conference last fall, provided peace was restored.

Then there should be an international conference — which would have to include Red China — to guarantee an agreement on self-determination for the Vietnamese, plus a plan for a referendum and reunification of North and South Vietnam.

Cong Role Assured

The Viet Cong, of course, would have to be part of any government in South Vietnam. They could hardly agree to any peace plan as Fulbright's that included them. But, once they were part of such a government, how long would their opposition last?

The same international conference should try to work out arrangements for neutralizing all Southeast Asia. Would the Red Chinese agree to that? If they did, how much meaning would it have, in view of their program to communize the world?

Finally, if no peace agreement is reached, according to Fulbright, the United States should consolidate its forces in carefully fortified areas, or enclaves. But then would leave the Viet Cong free to roam the rest of the country.

VFW Reports 520 Members

Andrew Edge, senior vice-commander of Joyce-Shirick Post 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Kingston, announced today the local post has reached a membership total of 520. Edge, who acts as membership chairman, noted that at the half-year mark in the post membership drive, enlistments were running 20 per cent ahead of the previous year.

He announced that the local post is still continuing to sponsor memberships in the organization for servicemen stationed in Vietnam. The post pays the full membership fee of those servicemen desiring to join, for their entire tour of duty in that country.

Already 16 area servicemen stationed in the Vietnam zone have taken advantage of the post sponsorship offer.

An application for membership may be obtained by the serviceman's wife or parent. It may be picked up at the post home, 552 Delaware Avenue, or by requesting that one be mailed to the local residence. Wife or parent may fill out the application and return it to the post home. The post sponsored membership card will be mailed to the serviceman affording him and his family V.F.W. privileges.

The V.F.W. is composed of men, who have fought for the nation on the battlefields of the world in time of war or crisis, looking out for the welfare of today's servicemen, veterans and dependents.

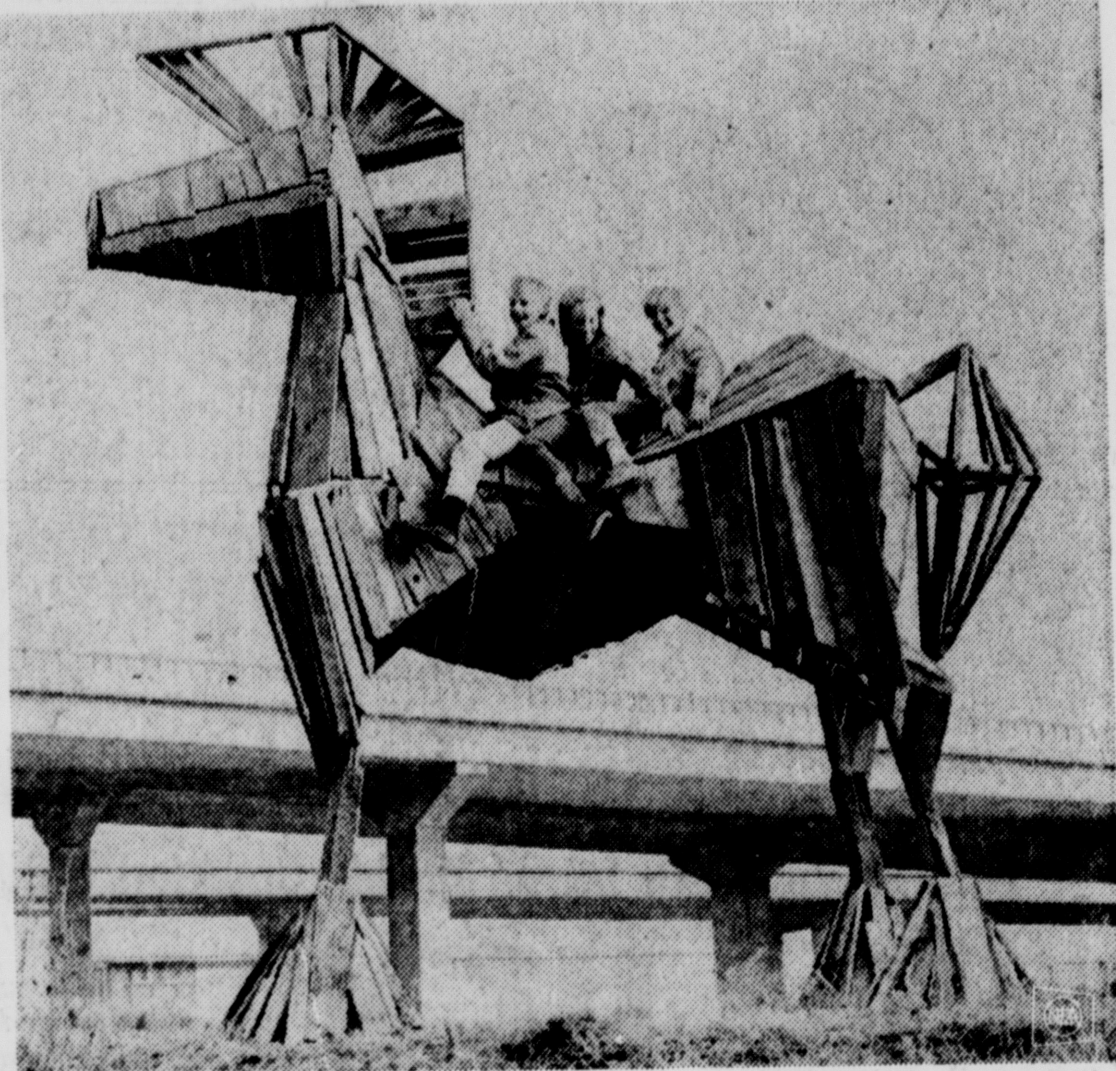

Brooker Heads Ulster Kiwanis

At a recent dinner meeting attended by members and their wives, new officers and directors of Ulster Kiwanis were officially installed for 1967.

Albert Brooker of Lake Katrine was installed as president. Other officers include Harvey Semiloff, vice-president; Nicholas Teskowitz, treasurer; and Robert Morehouse, secretary. William Aumond, Thomas Casey and Pete Gates were elected as directors for two years.

Hudson River Division, Lt. Gov. "Bud" Foeller of the Midletown Kiwanis club officiated over the installation proceedings.

TROJAN HORSE for freeway drivers was built by Marin County, Calif., artist Dennis Patton, who created the steed for billboard-sore eyes. Standing 14 feet high, it was built at an interchange just north of San Francisco at a spot where motorists previously had only a weedy patch of ground for scenery. Patton built the horse of lumber scraps in one 10-hour day. Local youngsters enjoy an imaginary ride in the picture above.

Researchers Find New Happy Juice, Has No Hangover

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Researchers at the University of Pittsburgh say they have isolated a key ingredient of kava kava, a South Seas drink that reportedly produces a peaceful, happy feeling — with no hangover.

The ingredient, called F-1, was described Tuesday as "extremely potent" by Pitt's Dr. Joseph P. Buckley.

He explained that F-1, unlike other substances derived from kava kava, is water soluble — an important point, because South Sea islanders dissolve the kava kava root in water and drink it. In other words, it might be F-1 that gives kava kava its kick.

F-1 was tried out on some mean laboratory rats. Dr. Buckley said, and the results were dramatic.

The rats were made vicious by brain lesions, said Dr. Buckley, adding, "The rats were so wild we couldn't hold them without heavy gloves."

But F-1 changed them remarkably, he said. No longer were they biting, rage-filled beaters. They became quiet and docile.

What's more, he said, the rats, under the influence of F-1, could walk along a rotating rod without losing their balance.

Electrical impulses from the brains of the rats showed the F-1 had acted on a much more primitive brain center than does alcohol, Buckley said.

Alcohol affects brain areas concerned with reason, balance and coordination, said Buckley, but F-1 acted on areas associated with such things as rage and hate.

"Maybe this explains why the South Sea islanders who take kava kava lose their anger and feel peaceful and happy," remarked Buckley.

Fir Grain Fine

White fir lumber has little grain pattern because the summerwood bands are exceptionally narrow, and both spring and summerwood are about the same color.

Fish Will Head Dutchess War on Poverty Center

Dutchess County's rural Opportunity Center located in Millbrook has a newly formed Advisory Council which was organized on Friday, Jan. 20, at a session at Grace Episcopal Church in Millbrook.

Chosen as temporary chairman of the War on Poverty's program center was well-known attorney Hamilton Fish Jr. He will serve as head of the council until permanent officers are elected sometime in the spring, according to Augustus C. Rhodes, center director.

Present at the formation meeting was Leslie Holloway, executive director for the Office of Economic Opportunity in Dutchess County. The OEO administers the city and county programs.

The County Opportunity Center Advisory Council will have jurisdiction over community action programs in the 20 townships in Dutchess. Other Opportunity Centers are located in downtown Beacon and Poughkeepsie.

Rhodes explained that the County Opportunity Center must serve 65 per cent of the county's poor who live outside of the two cities. Holloway cited the broad areas of education, jobs and housing in which the advisory group may operate.

Initiating action in these areas, Fish appointed the Rev. Kennon Moody, of Lagrangeville, to head a study of housing conditions in the county. He named Hyde Park attorney Bernard Kessler to investigate the scope of educational programs under the federal Poverty Act, particularly Head Start and Upward Bound.

The Advisory Council will meet monthly to evaluate existing programs and to recommend activities.

Four council members were appointed to the County OEO Board. They are Miss Marguerite Rotunno, Millbrook; Mr. Kessler, Hyde Park; Mrs. Marjorie McGrath and Mrs. Doris Fillhart.

The Rev. Jack Wartman, pastor of the Pleasant Valley Methodist Church; and Mrs. Jeanette Nodine, also of Pleasant Valley; were named as alternate representatives to the county OEO board. The six will act as liaison between the OEO board and the county council.

Migrant Free, No Jury Indictment

ALBION, N.Y. (AP)—A 42-year-old migrant worker is free of a first-degree manslaughter charge in the shotgun shooting of a woman because an Orleans County Grand Jury has refused to indict him.

James Smith Jr., who lived at the Colonie Labor Camp in nearby Kent, was accused of shooting Mrs. Kinzie Mae McKenney, 45, also a camp resident, last July 30.

Mrs. McKenney was shot as she and Smith struggled for possession of the weapon, sheriff's deputies said.

The grand jury decision was learned Tuesday.

Negotiators Try Again for Mohawk

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new round of talks in a mechanics' strike against Mohawk Airlines entered its second day today, with no immediate prospect of settlement.

The round began Tuesday in the offices of the National Mediation Board over the strike by 500 members of the International Association of Machinists.

The issue that led to the Dec. 9 walkout involved changes in the pension plan. That problem was resolved but a new dispute arose over terms of a back-to-work agreement.

The Utica-based airline has continued most operations since the strike began.

Grant Franzese Change of Venue On Bank Robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge Tuesday granted a defense motion for a mistrial in the bank robbery trial of John (Sonny) Franzese and five others and also granted a defense plea for a change of venue.

The trial will reopen in Syracuse, N.Y., Monday.

Asks Record Blackout

Judge Jacob Mishler, at the opening of the trial Monday, asked reporters to avoid mentioning the criminal records of the defendants. The defense motions were submitted in chambers Tuesday, citing an alleged prejudicial account of the opening day's developments published in the New York Times and Newsday.

The judge, taking the bench later, said: "Defendants move for a mistrial because of newspaper accounts. I grant the motion. And they move for a change of venue because of the fear that reporters would not in the future fairly report these proceedings and that the jury would be affected by such publicity."

In a story in today's paper, the New York Times said, "The Times refrained from publishing information that the judge asked the press not to report. The Times did report the previously published fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the police had listed Franzese as a ranking member of the Mafia, a matter that the judge did not bring up in court on Monday."

Defends Paper

A spokesman for Newsday said, "Newsday's stories concerning John (Sonny) Franzese's trial in Brooklyn Federal Court have been thorough and accurate and consistent with the obligation of a responsible newspaper."

The 48-year-old Franzese is accused of masterminding a series of bank stickups across the country, including the County Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kew Gardens, Queens, on July 30, 1965, and the United Savings and Loan Association of Oceanside, Queens, on Aug. 13, 1965.

The others on trial are William D. (Red) Crabbe, 37, of Ridgewood, Queens; John (Johnny Irish) Matera, 33, of Manhattan; Joseph M. (Whitey) Florio, 41, of Brooklyn; and Nicholas Potere, 41, of Brooklyn. Anthony Polisi was also indicted but he was granted a separate trial Tuesday.

Franzese lives at 47 Shrub Hollow Rd., Searington, N.Y.

Seeks Party Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Miami Beach bidding again for a national party convention says it can expand the seating capacity of the city's Convention Hall to meet the needs of the Democrats in 1968.

The Convention Hall seats 16,000 but the Democrats need seats for 22,000 to 25,000, Mayor Elliott Roosevelt says.

Pro-Castro MoveCarmichael Backs Independence Bid For Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Stokely Carmichael, a leader of the black power movement in the United States, lent his support Tuesday night to the movement for Puerto Rican independence.

Addressing several hundred persons at a street corner rally, Carmichael said: "We want to state unequivocally that we are behind the people who are fighting for the independence of Puerto Rico."

Carmichael, outgoing chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, is on a three-day visit to Puerto Rico. He was invited by the University Pro-Independence Federation, a leftist, pro-Castro group, and the Pro-Independence Movement.

Both Carmichael and leaders of the independence movement asserted at the rally that Puerto Rican independence and civil rights in the United States are closely allied.

"The Negroes are a colony

Blaze Is Checked On Milk Tanker

Fire believed to have been caused by a wheel bearing on a milk tanker as the vehicle was traveling south on the State Thruway south of Kingston late Tuesday night, was extinguished by the Thruway maintenance emergency crew.

Trooper Stanley Roberts reported William J. Ramsey of Colonie, was driving the truck owned by Ralph Beyer, Inc., of Schenectady south when the driver noticed black smoke in the rear of the vehicle.

Ramsey stopped the truck and as he was placing flares on the superhighway, rear tires on the vehicle burst into flames and heat from the blaze caused the tires to explode. Ramsey made an unsuccessful attempt to quell the fire with an extinguisher. Meanwhile, the Thruway maintenance department was notified and Spring Lake Fire Co. was dispatched to the scene.

Trooper Richard Ryan investigated. The fire occurred at about 10:30 p. m. near mile post 89.5 (South).

Will Centralize Flow of News To GI's Abroad

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pentagon is centralizing the flow of news to servicemen abroad, but says the move is a physical one, aimed at efficiency and not news management.

However, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the Special Government Information subcommittee, was on record today as looking into the matter.

Shift to Virginia

The New York and Los Angeles offices of the official Armed Forces Press, Radio and Television Service already have shifted to Arlington, Va. The New York Bureau of the Army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, was expected to follow.

"I have directed the subcommittee staff to look into the Stars and Stripes matter and I will keep you advised on developments," Moss wrote Hu Blomk, managing editor of the Wenatchee (Wash.) Daily World and chairman of The Associated Press Managing Editors Freedom of Information Committee. Blomk said he had received reports of a planned Pentagon centralization of news, and had written Moss about them.

In Washington, John Brozer, civilian director of Armed Forces Information and Education, said creation of the Armed Forces News Bureau represented a physical centralization for the sake of efficiency and economy.

Increased Flow

"There will be no difference in the handling of news but simply an increase in the flow of news," Brozer said. "I've been in the news field for 35 years and I hold the same views on news as most people in a free society hold."

Brozer denied any plans for censorship. He said both European and Pacific editions of Stars and Stripes will continue to receive Associated Press and United Press International news reports at overseas offices in Darmstadt, Germany, and Tokyo.

Wes Gallagher, general manager of The Associated Press, said AP had informed the directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education that present AP news contracts would not be renewed until the situation was clarified. The contracts expire June 30.

Services Supply

Both AP and UPI have provided news to the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service and Stars and Stripes since the start of World War II. Throughout World War II, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower strongly defended the editorial freedom of Stars and Stripes from high-ranking generals who wanted to make it an official mouthpiece.

Brozer and Lt. Col. William Coleman, officer in charge of the Armed Forces News Bureau, told The Associated Press they had no knowledge of any Pentagon interference in the Army newspaper's editorial freedom.

Other sources with contacts within the paper insisted that the Pentagon cabled instructions to the European and Tokyo editions of Stars and Stripes not to publish an AP Newsfeatures story by Sid Moody on the Joint Chiefs of Staff early this year, and an AP story by William L. Ryan late last year on the new breed of Soviet leaders.

Direction Unknown

An informant familiar with military procedures said if such cables were sent they likely would have come from another part of the Pentagon and not the Armed Forces News Bureau.

The Armed Forces News Bureau prepares news scripts for more than 300 overseas military radio and TV stations. It also prepares news for 1,400 troop newspapers at home and abroad, as well as a four-page commanders' digest for 75,000 officers who hold command positions.

Established in 1965, the 64-man bureau's overall mission, as outlined in an official fact sheet, is "to supply timely and accurate news of government news and information, military and general news, and sports and special events programming 24 hours a day to U.S. forces worldwide."

Centralization of the bureau was said in its fact sheet to have eliminated 24 jobs and saved the government $153,000.

Scared to Death

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Deborah Dunaway, 15, was riding a horse near her home in suburban Colerain Township Tuesday when a school bus came up behind her.

Authorities said the horse reared up in fright and suffered a fatal heart attack. Deborah was thrown, but landed on the road, unhurt. The horse fell against the bus, causing some minor damage.

The U.S. flag flies over the White House from sunrise to sunset whether or not the President is there.

Ask Compact Change

NEW YORK (AP) — The Interstate Sanitation Commission has proposed that the tri-state sanitation compact be amended to enable the commission "to function as a planning agency" or "to implement on an inter-governmental basis the plans made by other authorized bodies."

The proposal that the commission be given planning or action roles on Hudson River Basin water resources was sent to the governors of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut Tuesday.

The commission has been engaged in water pollution cleanup under the compact since 1936.

An expansion of the commission's air-pollution work to include federal representation and to provide rule-making and enforcement powers was recommended last week by New York and New Jersey representatives at an interstate air-pollution abatement conference.

In its proposal, the commission said it was "the only inter-governmental agency" operating at present in the Hudson Basin, and therefore might play a role in comprehensive planning on water resources "in the Hudson Valley or in the Greater New York area generally."

WOODSTOCK NEWS

Town's Events, World of Art Discussed in Leaycraft Work

In continuing the publication of the annual report of Woodstock Town Historian Edgar C. Leaycraft, covering the year 1966 and recently submitted to Supervisor William R. West Jr. as required by law, today's column covers additional miscellaneous town events, and part of the Woodstock art world, including Woodstock Artists Association, Maverick Concerts and Turnau Opera Company.

The second section of Leaycraft's report follows:

Certainly the most honored man in Woodstock during the year was Benjamin Webster, chairman of the Woodstock Planning Board. He was elected chairman of the Ulster County Planning Board and appointed a Director of the Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress Committee. He also was honored by the Woodstock Junior Chamber of Commerce as man-of-the-year in the town.

For excitement the town saw one-time resident Lee Marvin win a movie "Oscar" as best male actor of 1965 for his dual role in the movie, "Cat Ballou." Then, later in the year, there was a short search for two young people who, overtaken by darkness, had to spend the night on Overlook. They returned the next day, none the worse for their ordeal.

Tiano Resigned

After many years of service Charles Tiano resigned as County Democratic Committee secretary and Town Democratic Party chairman to be replaced by John Bonilla in the latter post.

The annual Horse Show was put on by the Woodstock Riding Club; as usual drew entries from a wide area. Virgil Van Wageningen was elected president, replacing retiring George W. Hard after many years of service in that office.

Other personnel changes in the town saw Harry Alperin, Richard Langham and Oscar Vanden Dooren elected directors of the Woodstock Chamber of Commerce, with Richard Langham also becoming president. Marlon Hutchinson was elected president of Toastmasters. John Spratt replaced W. J. Kahn as president of the Woodstock Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Robert W. Case was elected president, Association of Former New York State Troopers, Mid-Hudson Chapter. C. Link replaced retiring R. Bronson as assistant postmaster of Woodstock; and Abram Molyneux, former Town Supervisor, was appointed County Attorney.

During 1966 some physical changes took place in the village. At the start of the year the new A&P opened at the Bradley Meadows Shopping Center. Featured in the new store is a large mural done by Phyllis Ott and Gladys Plate. Also opening in the shopping center was the Woodstock branch of the Rondout National Bank. A new book shop opened next to the Cafe Espresso called the "Juggler," operated by Mr. and Mrs. James Young. Work was started on the new Overlook Methodist Church being built on the Bearsville Flats.

Week Changes Hands

The local newspaper, Woodstock Week, was sold by Sylvia Day to Bernard Wainer and Bernard Brynan, who appointed Fred Green as the new editor. He has since been replaced by Charles Bernpohl.

Woodstockers reported serving in Vietnam were Donald C. Cutler, USN, and Kenneth Wilson Jr., who was awarded the South Vietnam medal for gallantry and the Bronze Star Medal.

The year ended with the Christmas Eve celebration on the Village Green, this year held in a heavy snow storm. A brass group accompanied the crowd in singing Christmas carols, the Christmas story from the Bible was read, and Santa arrived on a dog sled to distribute stockings with fruit and candy to the assembled children.

The Woodstock Artists Association, under the leadership of chairman Thomas Penning, staged its usual series of shows in the art gallery on the village green, each one with an opening party. Many local artists contributed works to the "Collectors' Choice" event as a means of raising funds. The Christmas Show, limited to low priced works, proved extremely successful, with works sold right off the walls.

Poetry Session

The Association also presented a session on contemporary poetry featuring Marguerite Harris, Audrey Glaze and Al Kalzmann, and a conference on "The Artist in a Changing World" with Gordon Brown, Ad Reinhardt and Samuel Wagstaff as commentators.

Once again the sketch classes are being held in the gallery during the fall and winter with a very good turnout.

Robert Angeloch was elected chairman for the new year.

The Maverick Concerts, celebrating their 31st consecutive season (the longest continuous summer chamber music series in the country), presented a varied cross section of the chamber music field from solo piano to percussion groups, and from Vivaldi to Cowell.

Among the organizations performing at the beautiful Maverick summer concert hall were the Berkshire Quartet (Beethoven, Debussy, Dvorak), Curtis Quartet with Frank Mele, viola (Haydn, Schubert, Wold, Mozart), Musical Arts Trio with John Wummer, flute (Vivaldi, Bach, Mozart, Krauss, Kraft), Hartt Piano Trio (Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Haydn), Kohon Quartet with Isabelle Byman, piano (Mozart, Schoenberg, Schumann), Philharmonia Trio (Haydn, Brahms, Shostakovich), Woodstock Piano Quartette and the Paul Price percussion group.

A special memorial concert for the late Henry Cowell, who long lived in Shady, was given by the Salzburg String Quartet.

Special recitals were given by Dolores Holtz, piano, Grant Johannesen, piano, and Zara Nelsova, cello, and the season ended with Mozart, Faure and Beethoven sonatas performed by William Kroll and Jacqueline Marcault.

The musical director of the Maverick Concerts, Alexander Semmler, is to be congratulated on the high quality of the music and breadth of programming presented at the Maverick in 1966.

Joseph Deutsch Died

The loss of Joseph Deutsch, long associated with the operation of the Maverick concerts, was a serious one. He leaves a gap in the organization which will be hard to fill.

Once again the Turnau Opera Company with its young people gaining performing experience in real opera productions was in residence at its theatre in Byrdcliffe. The standard repertory operas presented were "Orpheus" by Gluck, "La Traviata" by Verdi, "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart and "Barber of Seville" by Rossini. In addition, Norman Walker directed "Die Kluge" by Carl Orff and Adelaide Bishop directed "Bluebeard's Castle" by Bela Bartok and "Erwartung" by Arnold Schoenberg.

These performances once again were a credit to Warren Wilson and Herbert Kaplan, the musical directors, and did much to enhance the summer season in Woodstock.

In addition to the performances in Byrdcliffe, special performances were given in Kingston for children.

Opera never having paid for itself, fund raising took several forms. The Friends of the Turnau Opera had a dinner party at Tom Penning's and another dinner at Deanie's. Fred Berk gave a series of folk dance sessions where he both led and taught the dances, and Harold Morris was presented in a classical guitar program.

Sales Award for Woolsey Serven

Woolsey E. Serven, 1 Stone Ridge Court, Woodstock, has been awarded the 1966 President's Award for outstanding selling by The Lawyers Co-operative Publishing Company, of Rochester according to an announcement made by C. Edward Dinger, sales manager.

This award is the firm's annual honor; goes to the one salesman in each region who has achieved the highest percentage of annual sales quota of all men in the region, and who has been in the field for a full calendar year. The award is an appropriately inscribed bust of a famous personality in the arts, sciences or politics, sculptured by Leo Cherne.

Serven, who resides here with his wife, Leonore, and their three children, is sales representative for the law book publishing firm and has been with the company for three years. He previously was employed as an analytical and country reporter for Dun & Bradstreet. He is a member of the American Legion, VFW, American Management Association, Republican Club, Men's Fellowship and Board of Stewardship.

Molloy to Join Jennings at P-TA

Regular meeting of the Ontario P-TA will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 31 in the High School cafeteria. There will be a short business meeting starting at 8 o'clock. The following committees will be announced: Jenkins Memorial Award, Nominating, and By-Laws.

The program for the evening will feature "Progress in Art" under the direction of Don Jennings, chairman of the Art Department. Also, John Molloy, assistant vice president of the Kingston Trust Company of Kingston, will present a brief review on "Financing College" through the use of grants, aids, scholarships and loans available to students planning to attend college. He will welcome and answer all questions pertaining to the subject. All parents are urged to attend this meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Happily Removes Bluestone From Non-Reading List

Riding to the rescue of The Freeman's reviewer this week in the matter of Bluestone III versus this column, is a gentleman who requested that his name be withheld, but signed his letter to the editor as "a Woodstock reader."

In answer to three letters published in this column recently which raked our review of the local literary magazine over the coals, the letter says:

"As a published writer myself, I'm more than a little dismayed by the utter lack of good taste shown in the letters you have received since your review of Bluestone III. At the same time I admire your...er, Genes, in publishing them."

"Seems to me that criticism is invaluable, regardless if it is criticized is person place or thing. Criticism is never completely unjust, and it must be weighed calmly, then picked apart and those notes of truth must be welded into the whole."

"As an irregular reader of 'little' magazines (which refers to the type, not the size) my first opinion in reading these letters was a form of Bill Shakespeare's line, that one where he thinks she doth protest too much."

"Unlike your opposition, Mrs. Geertsma, I won't go into great length and multi-syllabled words to make my point. Let's just leave it with one observation:

The greatest writers have ever steered clear of big, clumsy, massive words. They try to talk to, not at, their readers. And if I may judge from the writings of these pseudo-intellectuals (forgive me, Mr. London) their magazine must be just as over-syllabled. And I am very happy to move it from my 'accidental' non-reading list to my 'intentional' non-reading list."

Besides that, I agreed with you that anyone who has an "orgasm" perched on the diving board" of his soul is sic, sic, sic."

Buffalo GI Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has announced the death of Army Pfc. Donald E. Shoemaker of Buffalo in Vietnam.

The department released the announcement Tuesday of the combat death of the soldier, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Shoemaker.

EVER WONDER what the fashionable Russian male is wearing these days? Here's a Soviet dandy in the latest—a light tweed wool trousers and waist coat, with a darker jacket of extended length.

Declare IBM Dividend

NEW YORK—The Board of Directors of International Business Machines Corporation has declared a regular cash dividend for the first quarter of 1967 in the amount of $1.10 per share, payable March 10, 1967, to stockholders of record on Feb. 9, 1967. The board also announced its intention to declare a two and one-half (2½) per cent stock dividend immediately following the annual meeting of stockholders on April 24, 1967. Stockholders will be asked at the annual meeting to authorize additional shares, since the company does not now have sufficient authorized and unissued capital stock for the planned stock dividend. The stock dividend would be payable on June 10, 1967 to stockholders of record on May 4, 1967.

Republicans Hope To Garner 30 PC Of Negro Ballot

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Republicans are determined to pick up at least 30 per cent of the Negro vote in the 1968 presidential campaign by waging what one party official called the "most dynamic, aggressive program ever put on by the GOP."

Clarence L. Townes, a special assistant to Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss, mapped his plan to seek the Negro vote as the Republican National Committee closed a two-day meeting Tuesday.

"We had been rather ineffective in the past six years in attracting the Negro voter," Townes, a Negro, said in an interview. "I think it was because of an inability to articulate the Republican position (on civil rights)."

Townes' program calls for more contact between the Negro community and party officials and candidates through seminars and meetings with key Negro leaders.

He noted that the GOP captured 19 per cent of the Negro vote in last year's off-year election.

Bliss said that, considering the 6 per cent Negro vote the GOP received in 1964, the jump to 19 per cent was "phenomenal. I would have been surprised if we had received 12 per cent."

'Guerrilla-Type Effort'

Townes said the Negro vote drive last year was a "guerrilla-type effort" that aided such Republican candidates as Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee and Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois.

The main pitch of his program will be to "remind the Negro voter that the Republican party recognizes the equality of all," he said.

Townes said most of the "meaningful open-housing laws in the nation have been passed in states where there are Republican governors and, in most legislatures."

The Negro voter drive will stress that the Democrats have relied on "high-sounding words and catch-title 'slogans' to attract the Negro voter, he said."

Navy Shows Off Red Mine, Seen Work of Soviet

NHA BE, South Vietnam (AP) — The U.S. Navy today displayed a New Year's Eve present from the Viet Cong — the first contact mine found in the main shipping channel to Saigon. The Navy said the Russians made it.

The 1,000-pounder, covered with barnacles, was one of a number of enemy mines the Navy has fished out of the Long Tau River and put on exhibit on a barge at this installation 10 miles south of Saigon.

Contact mines are exploded when a ship hits one of several horns projecting from the mine's casing. All others found in the Long Tau have been types of devices attached to vessels and set off with a timing device, the Navy said.

"We don't know where the contact mine was assembled," said Capt. Paul Gray of St. John, Kan., assistant chief of naval operations in Vietnam. "It could have been assembled anywhere. Judging from the barnacles and other signs, we think it may have been kept hidden in a river in the Rung Sat special zone, then towed into the Long Tau."

The Rung Sat special zone is an area of rivers, canals, salt marshes and swamps south of Saigon from which the Viet Cong have launched many attacks on shipping heading up river toward the capital.

Several intensive military operations have been staged in the region recently, but progress has been slow.

Gray said a minesweeping boat cut the big mine's anchor line Dec. 31 and the mine bobbed to the surface.

It was towed to the shore, and Lt. Frank Talario, Red Bank, N.J., set about disarming it.

"I spent about two hours in the river working on it," said Talario, a 21-year Navy veteran and a demolitions expert. "I took it mighty easy, you know. It was quite a New Year's Eve."

Gray said the mine would be sent to the United States for study.

"It's a constant fight to keep the channel open," said Gray, a Navy aviator who was shot down five times in the Korean War.

Doubt Major Difficulties

Noting that at present the district has "an orderly schedule," Dr. Sullivan said, "we are in pretty good shape, but still not out of the woods." He noted that the district does not anticipate "any major difficulties" for the present at least.

Dr. Sullivan explained that the Public Service Commission is still inspecting vehicles used for transportation of pupils in the district.

It was reported Tuesday that current inspection by the PSC has put many of Lakeview Transit's buses out of operation, reportedly for reasons of safety and affected school bus transportation in the Kingston Consolidated School District and Ontario Central School District.

Tobin said yesterday that other transportation contractors had been called in to handle any emergency and provide buses in order to transport students to and from schools to their homes. Those contractors, Tobin noted, included Acker Bus Co., Lipton Bee Line, Chappie's Taxi, Arthur Mulligan of Rosendale and individual bus owners.

The firms which have been called in on the emergency, Tobin said yesterday, have been able to provide some extra buses from their surplus equipment. Through use of these buses, the situation has been alleviated somewhat, and most service has been continued.

Tobin contended that the shortness of time before school officials learned of the Lakeview Transit Inc. situation had delayed permanent solution to the transportation problem. Every effort is being made by officials in both school districts to continue orderly schedules for transportation of pupils to and from schools, officials said.

Eyes Improve if Used

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The best thing for your eyes is to use them, not save them, an expert says.

And, contrary to some belief, reading in poor light doesn't harm the eyes.

Dr. Albert E. Sloan, who said this Tuesday, is an eye surgeon at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary and chairman of the School Vision Problems Committee of the National Association for the Prevention of Blindness.

Sloan told a news conference that the belief still exists that reading in bed makes eyes weak.

The truth is that use improves the ability of the eye to use its potential fullest, he said.

Sloan was in Los Angeles as speaker at a week-long conference of eye, ear, nose and throat disorders.

Break-in at Bernal

A burglary at the Bernal-Baumont Diagnostic Center on East Chester Street by-pass, was under investigation today by BCI Investigator W. E. Wiedemann of the Kingston state police detail. Trooper Thomas Crowley was making a routine check of business establishments in the area at 4 a. m. when he discovered that a door on the east side of the building had been forced. A check of equipment and merchandise was being made to determine what, if anything, was taken by the intruders.

Baker Case: Trial Becomes Saga of Safe Deposit Boxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bobby Baker trial has become a saga of safe deposit boxes.

Testimony in U.S. District Court Tuesday centered around two such boxes — one rented by Baker, the other by the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

At issue was Baker's story that he collected nearly $100,000 in senatorial campaign contributions from California savings and loan executives in the fall of 1962 and turned the cash over to Kerr.

May Go to Jury Friday

Baker, former secretary to Senate Democrats, is accused of larceny, conspiracy and income tax evasion. The trial, in its third week, is expected to go to the jury Friday.

The government says Baker kept $80,000 of the money and spent much of it on his Carousel Motel at Ocean City, Md. The prosecution contends $66,300 of the contributions was received by Baker in Washington, the rest on a trip to California.

Edward Bennett Williams, Baker's lawyer, told the jury last week he would prove that when Kerr's Washington safe deposit box was opened after Kerr's death Jan. 1, 1963, it contained the "equivalent" of the funds Baker received in Washington, less $25,000 cash which Baker says Kerr lent him — or $41,300.

Rex McClure, District of Columbia tax examiner, testified Tuesday he was present when the box was opened, and that the official count showed $42,950 cash.

Notes 52-Minute Visit

Prosecutor William O. Bittman produced a bank record indicating that Baker paid a 52-minute visit to his own safe deposit box Nov. 29, 1962.

"You would have no need to stay there 52 minutes unless you were counting money, would you?" Bittman demanded.

Williams objected to this "smart observation" and Judge Oliver Gasch sustained him.

Baker said he probably stopped to chat with a bank official, and that time was erroneously recorded as time in the vault.

Petition Hits at Firing of Kerr at Berkeley College

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — About 1,000 University of California professors and teachers have condemned the sudden firing of President Clark Kerr as a "destructive political intervention."

Gov. Ronald Reagan in a news conference promised the university "won't be sullied by partisan politics."

Sharply Worded

Sharply worded resolutions passed Tuesday by the Academic Senate at the Berkeley campus and at the campus at Santa Barbara were the loudest academic outcries since 14 members of the Board of Regents, including Reagan, voted last Friday to end Kerr's career as head of the 87,000-student, nine-campus university.

In Sacramento, Reagan called the firing "ill-timed but necessary" and said that Kerr initiated the confrontation which led to the ouster vote.

Reagan, who had feuded with Kerr over proposals to cut the university budget and impose tuition, said the university "won't be sullied by partisan politics because this governor has no intention of ever overruling the regents."

Reagan in his campaign for governor last year charged that Kerr had permitted political activity on the campus in behalf of Reagan's democratic foe, then Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

See Albany Vote Harbinger of Things to Come

By WILLIAM S. STEVENS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The first really controversial bill brought before the 1967 Legislature has cleared its initial hurdle, and—perhaps prophetic of things to come — by only the narrowest of margins.

Voted 30 to 21

Democrats managed to swing enough Republican votes into their column Tuesday to gain Senate passage of a measure that would allow persons convicted of a crime for the first time to clear their records.

The "amnesty bill" was approved, 30-21, with 10 Republicans joining 20 Democrats to provide the majority vote. Two Democrats allied with 19 GOP senators in voting against the bill. A total of 29 votes are required for a bill to gain approval in the Senate.

The Senate vote provided most of the excitement in a rather quiet day at the Capitol Tuesday. In other developments:

—Sen. Thomas Laverne, R-Rochester, said he would seek legislation that would require a referendum every three years to determine if voters still wanted a state lottery.

Still Working on Lottery

Legislative leaders have been trying to reach agreement on operation of the lottery, approved by the voters last November. So far, consensus has been reached on a $2 price for tickets but other details still are subject to debate.

Called Temporary

The army daily said the minority role of Mao's forces was only temporary and that the 73-year-old Communist chairman himself had issued "a vital call" for military help.

The Post's People's Daily reported Tuesday that Maoist forces, with the decisive help of the army, had seized the government of Shansi Province adjacent to Peking and the capital city of Taiyuan.

But wall posters in Peking, reportedly by Japanese correspondents, said that pro-Liu "Red Flag Guards" and another anti-Mao organization took over a military barracks, the provincial government offices and Communist party headquarters in Changsha, capital of Mao's native Hunan Province, after clashes with the army Jan. 15. The report said six soldiers and six Maoists were hurt.

The editorial in the Liberation Army Daily hinted at resistance within the military to throwing the massive power of the army into what began as a political and ideological conflict between Mao and government and party officials headed by President Liu Shao-chi.

"Some people use 'nonintervention' as a pretext to suppress the masses in reality," it said. "This is absolutely impermissible. The question is not whether or not to intervene, but which side to stand on."

New Role for Army

The paper said the army had been called into action because of "the new situation" in Mao's purge, which was extended at the turn of the year to factories, mines and the countryside. Under the changed circumstances, it said, "it is not possible for the People's Liberation Army to refrain from intervention."

The army until this week had not been thrust directly into the Mao-Liu confrontation, and the call to it suggested that Mao's attempt to rest control of the government and the party organization was still running into heavy going.

Protests Increase On Car Towaway; Find Streets Open

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP) — Protests have mounted against the mid-Manhattan auto towaway program, with the loudest complaints coming from the handicapped and doctors. But city aides, traffic cops and bus and taxi drivers were bleated over the unclogged streets.

More than 160 drivers with physical handicaps took advantage Tuesday of Mayor John V. Lindsay's offer of police taxi service to and from work, but criticism flowed freely.

Termed Inhuman

Attorney Daniel Fields, a police victim who has held a special parking card for 14 years, said, "It's inhuman and it's not accomplishing anything."

But, said taxi driver Bernard Robins, "I used to win when I got a cross-town job. Now I don't mind at all."

Philip Guba, 43, a police victim who drives to work from Garden City on Long Island, commented that "a car is more important to us than a car to a diplomat."

Arthur Palmer Jr., city transportation administrator, said a plan might be worked out whereby handicapped drivers would be allowed to park in certain towaway areas. He said it would take considerable research, however, before deciding on a site.

Diplomats Feel Ban

Diplomats and foreign consuls were among the first of the previously privileged to feel the ban on parking in restricted areas bounded by 34th and 66th Streets and the East and Hudson rivers. However, those with diplomatic or foreign consular license plates need not pay the tow charges, which can amount to $40 to $50.

Newsmen with special plates were getting the towaway treatment, too.

A WNEW radio mobile unit, covering a protest meeting of the New York County Medical Society, was towed away.

Dr. John A. Lawler, president of the society, with 7,000 member doctors in Manhattan, said the ban against physicians parking while on emergency runs could bring "chaos to the practice of medicine and is a threat to the health of the city."

At his news conference Tuesday Mayor Lindsay claimed the no-parking campaign was tearing fruit. "Already traffic is beginning to move," he said.

Reports Knee Injury

Frank H. VanBramer, 32, of 543 Delaware Avenue, driver of a car in a mishap this morning on Greenkill Avenue, reported a knee injury and was to be treated by a doctor. Police said the car he drove went out of control at 5:55 a. m. and struck the parked car of Sheldon O'Rourke, of 65 Greenkill Avenue, near that address. Officers Otto Short and Howard Kelly investigated. O'Rourke is a former local patrolman.

Confesses Mao's Shock Forces Are in Minority

TOKYO (AP) — Defense Minister Lin Piao's propaganda outlet confessed today that Mao Tse-tung's shock forces are in the minority. Lin's Liberation Army Daily directed the 2.5-million-man armed forces to stamp out Mao's enemies "with the sun."

Called Temporary

The army daily said the minority role of Mao's forces was only temporary and that the 73-year-old Communist chairman himself had issued "a vital call" for military help.

Celler Quits As Delegate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-Brooklyn, today resigned as a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention because of "long and protracted hearings" he said he expects to hold concerning the seating of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-Harlem.

Celler told The Associated Press by telephone from his Washington office that he would not have the time to attend the convention which begins April 4 in Albany.

Celler, who is the senior member of the House, is heading a special house committee investigating Powell.

Senate Debates Revamp Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate opens debate today on a bulky reorganization bill designed to improve the operations of Congress and make more information available about its actions.

Consideration of the measure follows directly a two-week Senate floor tussle over its anti-bureaucracy rule.

This ended Tuesday with the defeat of a bid seeking to change Senate rules so a filibuster could be shut off by a three-fifths majority instead of two-thirds as now required.

Supporters of the rule change tried to cut off a talkfest against a motion to bring up the three-fifths plan. The effort obtained only a 53-46 vote, or 13 short of the needed two-thirds.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield then announced he was going to shift to the second major piece of floor business for the 1967 session — the reorganization bill.

This measure, worked out by a special Senate-House committee during the past two years, would make about 100 changes in present congressional procedures. Mansfield estimated it would take the rest of this week and next to act on it.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., chief Senate sponsor of this legislation, agreed. He said he had been optimistic the Senate would approve most of the changes, but added he now is concerned about a flood of threatened amendments.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., long a critic of congressional procedures, already has submitted 26 amendments.

Nuclear Power To Revolutionize Oil Industries

BABSON PARK, Mass.—Rapidly developing nuclear techniques may combine with long-delayed leasing of the Federal Government's vast shale oil reserves in the West to revolutionize the oil and natural gas industries, predicts Oil Statisticians Co., an affiliate of Spear & Staff, Inc., investment advisers.

"Nuclear fracturing—the use of underground atomic explosions to release vast, heretofore inaccessible deposits of natural gas and shale oil—could not only double recoverable natural gas reserves in the United States but unlock our multi-billion dollar Rocky Mountain shale reserves," said S. E. Gildersleeve, vice-president of Oil Statisticians Co.

"This would give us four times more crude oil than the entire world supply of conventional petroleum at a price fully competitive in both foreign and domestic markets, expediting oil recovery by 40 years."

Oil shale deposits under about 16,000 square miles of land in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming are 72 per cent government-owned. Government experts estimate that they contain more than 1,000 billion barrels of crude oil—about five times the known domestic crude reserves.

Peaceful Purposes
The Oil Statisticians Co. spokesman said the world's first use of an atomic bomb for peaceful industrial purposes—Project Gasbuggy, scheduled for next July in natural gas fields of the El Paso Natural Gas Co. at New Mexico's San Juan Basin—won't be commercially profitable. "Reserves in place at this particular site aren't large enough to cover the $4.7 million cost of the experiment. But that's not important. If successful as nuclear enthusiasts are confident it will be, El Paso's test, besides giving the nation's nuclear business a sharp boost, could yield untold benefits to America's petroleum industry, the public and the government by providing the key to unlock vast multi-billion dollar oil and gas fields now lying idle."

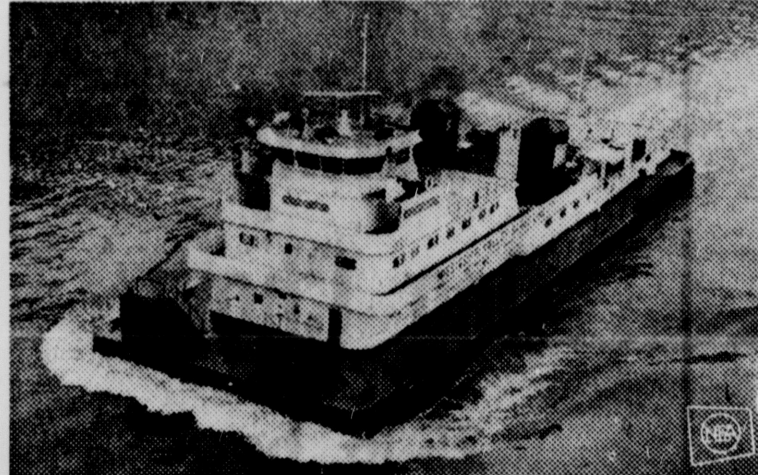

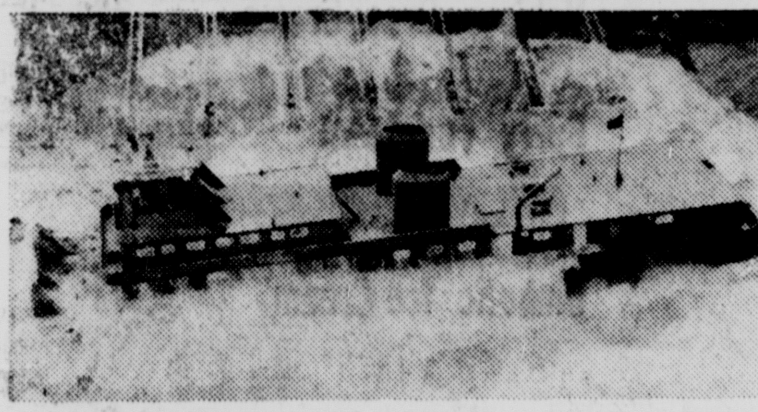

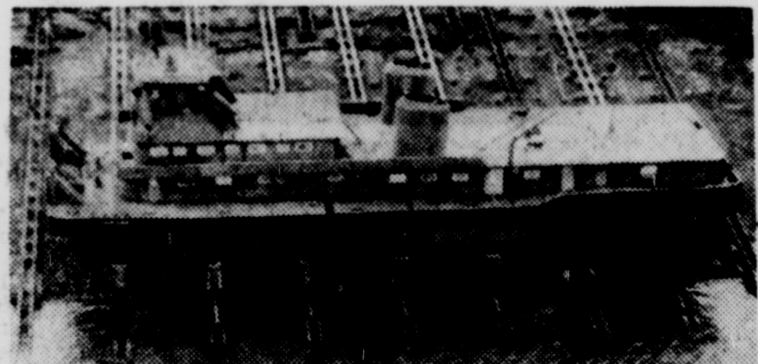

El Paso is working on the project in cooperation with the Atomic Energy Commission, the Interior Department and CER Geonuclear Corp. The latter is a joint venture of Continental Oil, Edgerton, Gernshausen & Grier, and Reynolds Electrical.

Continental Oil and Austral Oil Co. filed simultaneous proposals with the Atomic Energy Commission last month for nuclear fracturing experiments in Western Colorado gas fields. Both companies would have technical advice from CER Geonuclear Corp., if the AEC approves their proposals.

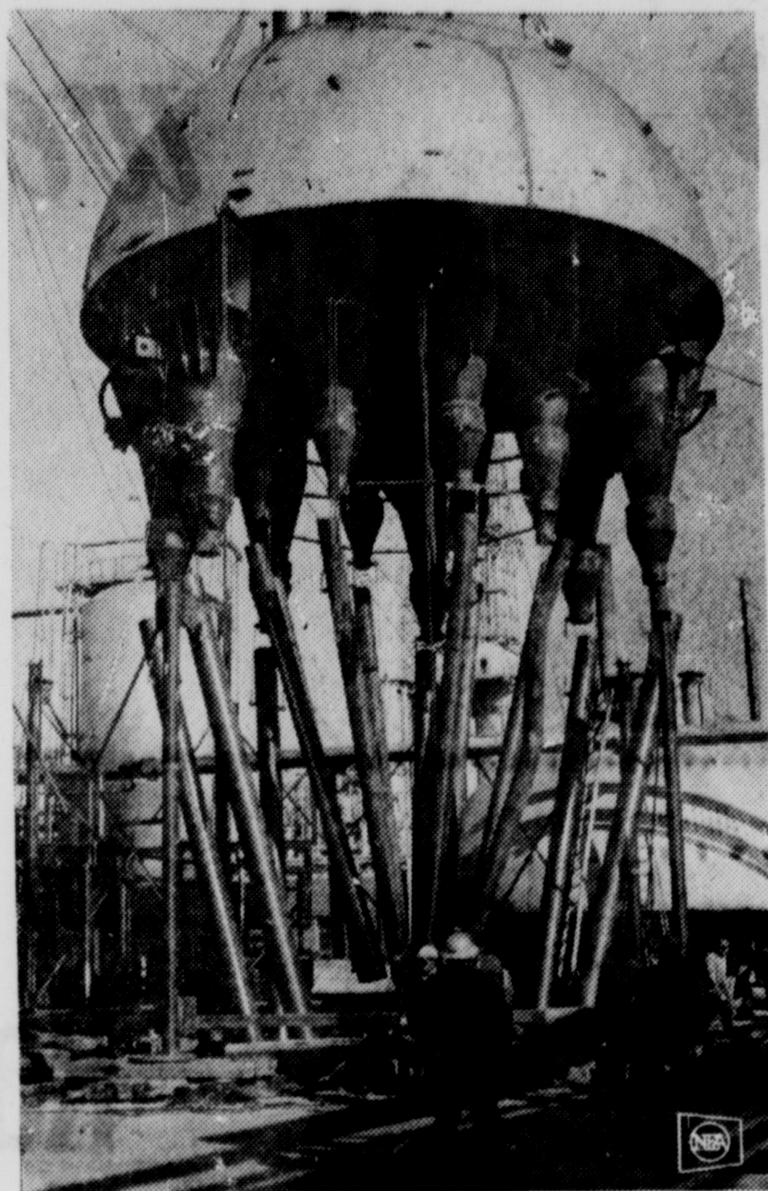

And, reports Oil Statisticians Co., 24 oil and mining companies, under the leadership of CER Geonuclear Corp. and the U. S. Bureau of Mines, have banded together to map out plans for the first atomic test shot as early as next year in the Rocky Mountain shale field. The group's proposal has been submitted to the AEC.

"Success here," says the Oil Statisticians Co. spokesman, "would unlock a trillion barrels of oil—greatest single source of crude oil in the world—and quite literally blast into being a commercial shale industry."

The District of Columbia has a total area of 69 square miles—61 square miles of land and 8 square miles of inland water.

DOWN THE WAYS and into the water goes another modern towboat for the expanding fleet operating on the nation's more than 4,000 miles of navigable inland waterways. The vessel, the 6,440-horsepower Lillian Clark built for the Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co. by Dravo Corp. of Pittsburgh, displaced more than a quarter million gallons of water when it hit the water, second picture. Bottom shows the towboat completely fitted and ready for service on the middle and lower Mississippi. Low costs and navigation improvements on many rivers, such as the Ohio and Arkansas, are behind a boom in freight shipments by water.

Burroughs Group Sets Nature Walk

An invitation is extended by members of the John Burroughs Natural History Society to join them this Saturday for a nature walk to see tracks and signs and other interesting things found in winter. The group will meet at 2 p. m. in the waiting room at the Gate House, the entrance to Mohonk Lake.

Leader of this winter walk will be Daniel Smiley of Lake Mohonk, a naturalist who has made extensive studies of the Gypsy Moth during the past years.

It is recommended that those attending dress warmly for this walk in the snow to assure an enjoyable, as well as an interesting afternoon.

In 1872, "Wild Bill" Hickok toured the east with the Buffalo Bill Show.

Expel Attache

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Indonesian government today ordered the Communist military attache in Jakarta expelled for an "unfriendly" attitude toward the Indonesian people.

The official news agency Antara said the Foreign Office gave Hsin Jen four days to leave Indonesia. Relations between Indonesia and Communist China have been at a low point since the failure of the attempted Communist coup in October 1965.

Hint Searching Study of Johnson Postal Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's proposed postal rate increases appeared headed today for a searching study by congressional critics demanding improved mail service and higher rates for magazines and so-called "junk mail."

Members Appear Split

Senior members of congressional committees that will handle the proposal appeared split on the President's recommendation that first class letter rates be raised to 6 cents, air mail to 9 cents and other classes except parcel post by 20 to 30 per cent to bring in $700 million annually.

"I want them to give some good justifications for their expenses and explain why the mail service has broken down so badly before I make any commitment to support an increase," said Rep. H.R. Gross of Iowa, second ranking GOP member of the House Post Office Committee.

Rep. Arnold Olsen, D-Mont., another high-ranking committee member, said he opposes "an increase in the first class category without comparable or higher adjustments in all other classes of mail."

Olsen said the Post Office's deficit "results to a great extent from second and third class mail rates which are too favorable." Second class includes magazines. Third class covers mass mailings, including advertisements and free samples addressed to "resident" or "occupant."

Careful Perusal

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee, said his group will examine the President's proposals "very carefully."

"First class makes the money and they lose it on the rest," Monroney said. He said he recognized the department's need for additional funds.

Rep. Robert J. Corbett of Pennsylvania, a senior GOP member of the House committee, said he believes that "some increase in these categories of mail will prove necessary."

Bishop Pike Likens Church to Taillight

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Bishop James A. Pike says the Christian church is the "taillight, not the headlight, when it comes to the truth."

Speaking before a capacity crowd at the University of Florida Tuesday night, Bishop Pike said that theologians are showing laziness and underestimating the people when they say, "Don't let the little people know, say it the old way, make them feel good."

"The people as a whole and the new theologians are thinking the same questions. It's the church officials who are out of the ball game," Pike said. "But they will catch on."

Bishop Pike, who is seeking a hearing on heresy charges recently filed against him, said, "The prefabricated answers are getting to look stranger and stranger to us, and less and less relevant. It seems more like astrology and alchemy."

The former Episcopal bishop of California said, "the church is dying. But religious books are selling like hotcakes." He noted a decline in church membership and attendance, accompanied by an increased interest in religion.

"The Christian church is being dragged screaming and kicking into the 20th century," he said.

Up for Oscar

Inexpensive Film Rates With Epics

By BOB THOMAS

DANA POINT, Calif. (AP) — Recently a film called "The Endless Summer" placed No. 10 on Variety's weekly list of the country's money-making films, which included "The Sound of Music," "Doctor Zhivago" and "The Bible."

$50,000 or $10 Million

Those epics cost more than $10 million apiece. "The Endless Summer" ran up a total bill of $50,000.

Dubbed "Fellini of the Foam" — New York Times — and "Bergman of the Boards" — Time magazine — Bruce Brown has accomplished what appeared to be impossible. He took his simple, beautifully filmed movie to New York and achieved reviews that many a producer of epics would trade his yacht for.

After eight months "The Endless Summer" is still playing at the Kips Bay Theater in Manhattan, and it has broken records in other key cities. It is up for an Oscar as best documentary of 1966.

I dropped down to this sun-awake community 70 miles south of Hollywood to find out if success had spoiled Bruce Brown. It hasn't. He remains the same independent soul as when he was showing his surfing films in high school auditoriums of Southern California.

"Yeah, there has been a lot of action since 'The Endless Summer' was accepted by a mass audience," he conceded. "Producers call me with ideas for movies, all of which I don't want to do."

"What I want to make is a movie about commercial fishing for swordfish. But every time I mention it to people in the movie business, their eyes glaze and

by Kate Osann

"As of right now, I'm no longer dating the editor of the school paper—he's misspelled my name!"

they say, "Nobody wants to see a film about fishing."

For a couple of years, the same persons were telling Brown, "Nobody wants to see a film about surfing." But Brown figured there would be general interest in his movie, which concerned the around-the-world search of two young surfers for the perfect wave. He hooked everything he owned to finance the New York opening, and the gamble paid off.

"If it hadn't, I would have lost everything — my house, my business, the whole works," he says. "I was up to my eyeballs in debt."

Everything is coming up roses now. He can afford a 40-foot commercial fishing boat and an ocean runabout, four motorcycles and a Jeep to prowling the nearby hills. A slim man of 29 with sun-bleached hair and a constant tan, he prefers the ocean or mountain life to work in smog-bound Hollywood. He lives in a cliff-hanging house with his pretty wife and three children.

"Me work in a studio?" he muses. "Not a chance."

Set Feb. Hearing For High Falls Man

Donald William Quick, 20, of High Falls, who was arrested Tuesday by Ulster County Investigator Harold T. Bowers and BCI Investigator John Salter on a charge of possession of stolen property, was later released in his own recognizance for a hearing on Feb. 14 before Town of Rosendale Justice Daniel McMonagle.

Quick was charged with violation of Section 1308 of the Penal Law, possession of stolen property as a felony. Involved are articles reported to have been taken on December 11, 1966, from the Fauble Lake House, DeWitt Lake, Town of Rosendale. It was charged by the arresting officers that Quick had possession of a chain saw, a 4 horsepower motor, a movie projector and a 40-pound pull bow.

Five Area Boy Scouts Named For Roles in World Jamboree

Five teenaged representatives of the Rip Van Winkle Boy Scout Council are slated to attend the 12th World Jamboree Aug. 1-9 at Farragut State Park in Idaho.

The five are Christopher Dapp, 15, an Eagle Scout of Troop 70 in Highland; Thomas Benson, 15, a Life Scout of Explorer Post 28 in Ellenville; Anthony Appa, 15, a Life Scout of Troop 45 in Cossack; Henry Wagner, 14, a Star Scout of Troop 141 in Catskill and John C. Karkheck, 14, a Life Scout of Troop 101 in Durham.

First in U.S.

This Jamboree will be the first World Jamboree to be conducted in the United States under the auspices of the Boy Scouts of America, with some 15,000 Scouts and Scouters representing 90 countries expected. The theme will be "For Friendship." The U.S. delegation is limited to 5,000 Scouts and Scouters.

The Rip Van Winkle Council has been allocated four World Jamboree delegates and one Host Corps member. Christopher Dapp will be the Host Corps member with the other four as contingent members.

The host Corps is composed of carefully selected Eagle Scouts who will mingle with visiting Scouts and get to know them. They will be assigned to live with a visiting patrol or troop to help with cooking and everyday experiences.

Must Speak Language

The host Corps Scouts will have a special training program at the Jamboree prior to the opening of the jamboree. These Scouts will be expected to speak the language of the troop or patrol to which they are assigned. Scout Executive Alex Macdonald said the five local Scouts selected to participate had to meet rigid requirements. They were interviewed by the Council's 12th World Jamboree Committee and had to receive approval by Region 2, Bay Scouts of America.

Local delegates will be part of the Region 2 contingent to the Jamboree and will participate in a pre-Jamboree Training Encampment to be conducted at Camp Schoellkopf in Cowlesville, operated by the Buffalo Area Boy Scout Council.

Will Tour Later

Transportation to and from the Jamboree will be by air. A special program of tours is being arranged for the period following the Jamboree.

The complete cost of Jamboree participation, including all fees and transportation, will be borne by the Scouts and their families.

The Rip Van Winkle Council's 12th World Jamboree Committee was under the Chairmanship of Sherwood Lasher, Kingston, who also serves as chairman of the Council's Activities Committee. Committee members include Oliver Tweedy, Hurley; Dr. Clement Angstrom, Kingston; Dr. Richard Craft, Ellenville; Dr. Richard C. Jones, New Paltz; John Fromer, Tannersville; Herbert Greenwald, Kingston; Doug S. Meyers Jr., Kingston and Dr. DuBois Jenkins, Catskill.

BERRY'S WORLD

"NO MORE ALLOWANCE! Now's as good a time as any to learn how to spend more than you make."

Virgin Islands Reject Subsidy; Seek New Crops

CHRISTIANSTED, Virgin Islands (AP) — The Virgin Islands has had its fill of subsidies for farming and doesn't want any more of them.

Agriculture is being realigned in this prosperous U.S. territory, but Gov. Ralph Paiewonsky makes it clear there will be no farming activity requiring government subsidies, either at the expense of the federal Treasury or the Virgin Islands' own exchequer. Otherwise, the governor says, farmers will get all the cooperation they need.

The sugar industry, one of the oldest in the Western world, has been driven out of the Virgin Islands by low prices and high wages.

Chronic Deficits
Chronic deficits, financed indirectly by local taxpayers for years, strangled an activity that remains the main support for the fragile economies of many small colonies and nations in the Caribbean. For centuries it was the No. 1 cash source here.

The relatively small local operation was centered on St. Croix, largest of the three American Virgin Islands and the only one with any agricultural potential.

There is no firm decision yet on the future activity to which the land, most of it in private hands, will be applied.

Some of it is being sold for real estate development. There is talk of raising cattle or food crops to meet the demands of a small but growing market that has to import most of its food from the U.S. mainland and Puerto Rico. Under consideration are the possibilities of raising export crops — cotton and winter produce like tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers and melons — for the nearby U.S. market.

The development of agriculture involves formidable limitations: shortage of water and of arable land, a limited internal market and expensive labor — the $125 U.S. minimum hourly wage applies here.

St. Croix is a thin sliver of emerald hills and flats, 23 miles long, averaging some five miles in width. Less than a fifth of its 54,000 acres is under cultivation.

Tourist Attractions
Its smaller sisters, St. Thomas and St. John, are mostly mountains with beaches more profitably exploited as tourist attractions. They are 1,400 miles southeast of New York and 40 miles east of Puerto Rico. Tourism, the chief dollar earner, is confined mostly to St. Thomas and St. John.

No special problems were created by the disappearance of the sugar industry, except to the big producers. The islands have a chronic labor shortage. The sugar industry used mostly workers imported from nearby islands.

Paiewonsky, who believes the Virgin Islands should not rely too heavily on tourism, is banking on a combination that includes light industry, food crop and export farming, to make the islands' economy thoroughly workable.

Ministers Set Meeting

The Mid-Hudson Valley Minister and Laymen 5th Sunday Union will hold its first yearly session at the Riverview Baptist Church, 240 Catherine Street, beginning Thursday at 8 p. m. The meetings, under the direction of union president the Rev. Philip N. Sanders Jr., will continue until Sunday at 5 p. m. The public is invited.

Rebel Division Began Peking March Last Summer, Stopped at 11th Hour

EDITOR'S NOTE—The lines of conflict in mainland China are slowly becoming discernible. How the "cultural revolution" has skirted the edge of civil war is reported in this analysis by an AP specialist in Communist affairs. It is the third of a five-part series telling the background of China's troubles as far as they can be traced from available information.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

How close did Red China's current convulsion come to civil war?

Closer last June and July than it is now—closer than at any time since communism took over the vast nation, say students of the scene.

Study of Red Chinese documents has led these analysts to conclude that last summer a division from north China was moving on the Peking-Tientsin area and was stopped only at the 11th hour.

Same as Moscow, 1957

The documents also indicate that in some respects what is going on now in China is a Chinese version of what happened in Moscow in 1957, when Nikita S. Khrushchev came within a hair of being thrown out by an opposition group he labeled "anti-party." There is a similar "anti-party" group in China now.

The story of the Red Chinese regime's close brush with civil war, as the students of China piece it together, goes back to November 1965. That is when the current phase of the developing upheaval began, and the outlines of a power struggle became clearly discernible to the outside world.

The evidence is that every time party Chairman Mao Tse-tung faces political trouble, he disappears from Peking, betakes himself to his Shanghai stronghold to weather the storm and plot countermeasures. He did this in 1954, when a grab for power by the onetime boss of Manchuria, Kao Kang, resulted in a political clash and purge. He turned up in Shanghai when the battle lines were being drawn late in 1965, and again only recently, when the confusion of his "great proletarian cultural revolution" was reaching a peak.

Mao would return from Shanghai to Peking when the time of decision was near: When a Central Committee session or some similar meeting was about to take action.

Mao Disappears

As Mao disappeared from Peking in November 1965, Wu Han, the playwright and deputy mayor of the capital, was being denounced for the important "Hui Jui's dismissal." The play, in essence, had been a symbolic protest—understood by millions of Chinese—against Mao for ousting those who disagreed with him.

Wu became the first important victim of a new purge. Then his chief, Mayor Peng Chen, a power in the Politburo, was brought down in disgrace. The evidence indicates Peng was purged in April last year, since he was not in his accustomed place for the important May Day parade at which he invariably had been a dominating figure.

The first attacks on Wu and Peng appeared in the Shanghai paper, Wen Hui Pao, suggesting Mao's hand. This probably was because Mayor Peng and President Liu Shao-chi still controlled the central press in Peking.

Then Liberation Army Daily, the paper of Lin Piao's Defense Ministry, mounted a vicious attack on intellectuals, concentrating on editorial boards of the main papers, including the most important, People's Daily, the mouthpiece of the party. It accused the staffs of trying to protect Wu Han and his colleagues in crime and plotting against Mao's leadership in the critical 1961-62 period of economic woe which resulted mainly from the dismal failure of Mao's "great leap forward."

Many Fall

This attack brought down several other high-ranking people, including Lu Ting-wei, head of the party's propaganda department, and his deputy, Chou Yang; the head of Peking University and the editorial staffs of practically all Peking papers. All these were accused of trying to influence China's youth to turn away from Mao's "thinking."

Nothing is sure about Communist politics, but it appeared that both premier Chou En-lai and party Secretary-General Teng Hsiao-ping had thrown in their lot with Mao and Defense Minister Lin Tenz was in Shanghai when the purge movement began.

The situation in Peking became tense as summer neared. There was evidence of discontent among army officers and of opposition to Mao's policies from Lo Jui-ching, the chief of staff.

Lo is believed to have issued orders to a division in northwest China to move down toward Peking. Defense Minister Lin, aware of this, is believed to have ordered a division to move north to Peking out of Shanghai. He is said to have ordered his division commander to get in contact with the commander of the division and order him to stay out of the Peking-Tientsin area. It worked. If it had not, civil war was just around the corner.

Teng Shifts Again

At this point there is reason to believe that party Secretary Teng shifted sides again, allied himself with President Liu and planned to call a Central Committee meeting to deal with the crisis. But then he changed his mind yet again, the evidence indicates. Thus, when a Central Committee meeting finally was called for the first part of August, Mao was able to back from Shanghai in time to attend it. The fact that there was no meeting until then may have saved Mao from being overthrown.

The Central Committee met for two weeks, then issued a set of instructions calling for a "great proletarian cultural revolution." Mao seemed in control once again with the help of Defense Minister Lin and forces loyal to him.

The emerging picture was one of Lin himself striking out for supreme power through control of the propaganda apparatus and the army. To do this he had to bypass many people. The Young Communist League had been Peng Chen's creature and a source of possible opposition to Lin. The All-China Federation of Trade Unions had belonged to President Liu, and it was yet another source of opposition to Lin.

Most China-watchers agree

that Lin won Mao's blessing for a new phenomenon: The Red Guards of Defense — Hung Wei Ping. It seems to have been Lin's creation.

Millions of Guards

It was made up of students up to 18, millions of them, all born under communism, all indoctrinated from the cradle, all too unsophisticated to know what really was going on, and all spoiling for a binge of reckless violence with a license from on high. The intellectuals, the trade union people and the middle-aged "young Communists" would be no match for them.

Lin turned their wrath on the party apparatus at province and local levels. Swarming into the streets by the hundreds of thousands in city after city, they beat and humiliated many a lower-level party leader accused of straying from "Mao Tse-tung's thinking." And they terrorized urban populations.

Lin, meanwhile, broke up the Peking city party committee and repopulated it with his own men, thus depriving the opposition of command over the Peking garrison. He fired the Central Committee of the Young Communist League and abolished the organization. He shook up the staffs of all important provincial papers. He purged universities. He decreed suspension of all higher education in September so that students could devote themselves to the cultural revolution and "Mao's thinking."

Peng Chen had been an early purge victim because he probably was most dangerous to Lin and Mao. His position was not unlike that held by the Soviet secret police chief, Lavrenty Beria, in Moscow when Stalin died.

NEXT: Time of decision.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By Sophie Miller

Mrs. Sam (Helen) Mann, sent me down some Kingston Daily Freeman of the first World War days. The Monday evening, July 27, 1914 has as headlines "War Clouds lower over all of Europe . . . England urges conference to avert general European war, the greatest catastrophe that could befall Europe" . . . "It seems appeals were made to Berlin, Paris and Rome to act. History now knows the outcome."

The front page of this 1914 issue carried classified advertisements. One item read: "Building on Hasbrouck Avenue, 47, 49, and 51 formerly occupied as a cracker bakery, will be fitted up to suit the tenants, S. Staples, 15 President's Place." This was in the to let section.

The front page also carried the death notice of Samuel Stern Sr., who was a well known optician and resident of Rondout since 1863. He was father of Dr. A. A. Stern and Samuel Stern of Kingston. He had lived on Hone Street, S. Stern Sr. was born in Germany in 1845 and when 15 years old came to this country and engaged in the optical business in New York City. At that time, there were but three opticians in the entire United States. While doing business in New York he traveled all through this part of the state and made many friends. In 1863 Mr. Stern came to Rondout and remained in business ever since, making frequent trips through the counties of Greene, Delaware, Sullivan and Ulster. His late wife was the former Amelia Diamond of New York. Samuel Stern's father died in 1901 at the age of 102 years, and his mother died in 1911 at the age of 99. Samuel Stern will continue his father's business, so item stated in 1914. Dr. A. A. Stern, a medical doctor, had an office for many years on the Strand.

In 1914 when folks enjoyed their porches, Gregory and Co. were having a close out sale on straw porch rockers. The illustrated item read in part in this July 27, 1914 Freeman. "This is the season of the year when the heart is astir with dreams of living in nature's garden — the great outdoors. To enjoy the exhilarating air there must be a feeling of refreshment and coolness that cannot be had if the furniture about you is hot and stuffy looking." They list their sale on veranda rockers, from 95 cents to $4.75.

The July 27, 1914 Freeman had a large advertisement telling about a "Grand Excursion, to Bear Mountain Park, St. James M.E. Sunday School, by steamer, Mary Powell, Wednesday, July 26. Tickets at popular prices of adults 50 cents, children 25 cents. Boat leaves Powell Dock at 8:30 a. m. Eddyville yacht will meet excursion on its return. Special trolley service. Boat will leave Bear Mountain dock 5 p. m. with excursionists having five hours at the park. Luncheon and refreshments served on the Mary Powell. The boat will land at Newburgh both ways, giving those who wish the opportunity to visit this historic city. Washington's Headquarters, Orange Lake, Downing Park and Mt.

Beacon. Excursion will go rain or shine."

The delight of a boat ride on the magnificent Mary Powell cannot be described with words. Sailing on the Hudson on one of those block long steamers, was like riding on velvet. There was music, glass enclosed lounges, straw furniture on carpeted floors, or folding chairs on the deck, and everywhere relaxation, quiet, safety and courteous service of the staff. Thousands of people would be on these boats, and yet they would be as quiet as an audience at a theatre, enjoying the view, refreshments and excursion in general.

List Telethon Phone Workers

Mrs. Martin Nilan, Telephone Center City and Kingston for the Cerebral Palsy Telethon Jan. 28 and 29 has announced that the telephones will be operated on an all night basis again this year. The Ulster County Savings Bank, 280 Wall Street, has donated the use of its facilities for the convenience of the calling in pledges. Volunteers will be on hand to distribute pictures of the TV stars appearing on the telethon and to receive monies collected during the telethon.

Very often children watching the telethon will decide to collect coins for CP from their neighborhood. This is done voluntarily, not under the auspices of CP. Each year many groups of children turn into the bank canisters of money which they have collected as their contribution. The collections are made despite weather conditions, which sometimes have been stormy and cold on the day of the telethon.

Refreshments donated by the St. James Methodist Church Guild; Business and Professional Womens Organization; Jones, Babcocks, and Boice Dairys; Schwenks, Salzmann and Kettlers Bakeries; and Shoprite will be available for the children and volunteers.

Volunteers scheduled include: 11 p. m. to 1:30 a. m. Miss Elizabeth McCord and the Mmes. Mario Naccarato, Daniel Russo, Murray Fletcher and Raymond McCourt; 1:30 to 3:30 Stephen Hyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meiswinkle, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kirschner; 3:30 to 5:30 Bard students Stephen Hyatt Jr., Kathryn Rauscher and Jeffery Levy; 5:30 to 7:30 Dr. Thomas White and W. Henry Haltermann; 7:30 to 9 the Mmes. David Garbarg, Francis Devlin, Mario Naccarato, Daniel Russo, John Frangello and Miss Kathleen Shorter; 9 to 11 the Mmes. Roger Mabie, Rudy Firmback, William Keating, Wilson Tinney, Chester McCord, Robert Beaumont, and Ronald Sleight; 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. the Mmes. Fred Libbos, Joseph Smith, Bernard Darling, Joseph Blaha, Francis Churchwell, Stanley Zarborski, Michael Perry and Collins Chisholm.

1 to 3 the Mmes. Carl Pitcock, Donald Leard, Carl Pederson, Darrel Myers, Edward Wiltzie, Fred Kirk, Kenneth Griffin, Joel Brink and the Misses Lucille and Jennie Corrado; 3 to 5 the Mmes. Kenneth Griffin, Clifford Davis, Joel Brink, William Porter, Harry Freer Sr., Marion Freer, Hilda Anderson and the Misses Mariann Updegraff and Audrey Shultis; 5 to 6:30 the Mmes. Duane Froese, Ray Anderson, Stanley Janacek, Lewis Siler, Frank Baker and Miss Judy Millham.

Others working will be the Mmes. Emmy Funard, Walter Perret, Edward deGroff, Stephen Hyatt, William Oskey Jr., and John Snyder, and the Misses Mary Keresman, Donna Nilan, Katherine Murphy and Jane Broderick; also Martin Nilan, Walter Perret, Edward deGroff, Oscar Lawatch and William Hobbs.

Mrs. Nilan said, "We are very grateful to all of those who are contributing their services to help with this telethon. We have more volunteer help of all kinds this year than ever before."

A Community Chest agency, United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County treats over 200 children for all kinds of physical handicaps. Many of them travel many miles from areas outside the chest area.

Seek Students For Talented Art Program in Paltz

Application forms for the Spring Talented Workshop program, an ESEA Title III grant operated under the Mid-Hudson Regional Supplementary Educational Center, New Paltz, have been sent to schools in Orange, Putnam, Dutchess, Sullivan, and Upper Westchester Counties. The applications are given to art teachers who recommend potentially talented art students for participation in non-classroom studio workshops. The workshops are conducted in studios of participating craftsmen.

Success of TAP has been heralded throughout the American education scene and is being used by other communities as a model for similar programs.

Craftsmen for Spring workshops will be located in the Woodstock, Rock Tavern, New Paltz, and the Poughkeepsie area. Students, whose ages range from nine to 16, will be transported by bus each Saturday from March 4, to June 17. Workshop sessions are for four hours (10 a. m. to 2 p. m.).

UCCS Staff Members At Health Meeting

Three members of the Health and physical Education staff at Ulster County Community College attended the recent annual conference of the New York State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation at the Concord Hotel, Kiamasha Lake.

They were Albert DiBernardo, Michael Perry and Mark Cranfield.

They were among 3,000 professionals in the fields of health physical education and recreation attending the conference last weekend. The program featured sex education, public relations and education trends at three general sessions. In addition, there were 85 small group meetings on methods, health education, curriculum problems, physical fitness and athletics.

Suggest Producer Of Women's Essay Go Into Hiding

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If Andrew A. Rooney, writer and producer of CBS's Tuesday night's "Essay on Women" is as smart as he seems to be, he'll get out of town and hide until furious feminine reaction to his effort dies down.
The twinkle in the eyes of his narrator, Harry Reasoner, did not make amends for all those snide things he was saying about us. What made things worse was that he demonstrated by film that he was often right.

Downright Sentimental
Rooney, who has demonstrated his affection for doors and bridges in earlier television essays, seems to like us in spite of everything.

Bravely risking a broad generalization, his thesis was that "what men want from women is love, a clean house, forgiveness and a stultifying holding to moral values." Obviously, he wishes we would stop stewing about such things as establishing our own identities, get back in the home and concentrate on dinner and dusting.

Rooney poked devastating fun at clubwomen fretting over woman's status and at working women. His reflections on the military woman may be the despair of recruiting officers.

When he was dealing with woman in the family — wife and mother — he was downright sentimental.

He agreed that "housewife" is a terrible word, and that modern appliances have actually increased woman's work because she now tackles twice as much. He stated unequivocally that most American women are good shoppers but bad cooks, that women who work give up their own sense of values for men's — position, power and money. He said that women with power "are mean to each other," and use more authority than is necessary.

The unkindest cuts were his illustrations — fat lady shoppers in tight forehead pants, a bossy supervisor brusquely ordering around a member of her staff, a military review of women in dowdy, mannish uniforms.

Dislikes Sharing Woman
He was most interesting when philosophizing on man's relationship to women — "Men like women anywhere and at work is no exception. One man on the other hand, is never really comfortable when the one woman he likes best, works. A man does not like to share a woman with anyone."

Reasoner, at the outset announced that the broadcast had been prepared by men and made no claim to being fair. It wasn't, but it was literate and witty.

NBC will present a two-hour adaptation of the musical comedy hit, "Damn Yankees" April 8, but has not announced the stars. It is expected that the network will also present an "Annie Get Your Gun" with Ethel Merman sometime in March.

Recommended tonight: Perry Como Special, NBC, 9-10 EST, with Nancy Ames and Eddy Arnold.

Arrest Third Man

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—A 26-year-old house painter, arrested here while on a contracting job, has become the third man charged with first-degree murder in the beating of a discount-store department manager in Buffalo, N.Y.

Ronald F. Babchak was taken into custody Tuesday by police here on a Buffalo warrant charging him with murder. Buffalo detectives said they had information on where Babchak could be located here and requested Oakland police to make the arrest.

Wayne Trimmer, 22, no permanent address, and Martin Clearv, 20, of Buffalo, also face murder charges in the beating of Sydney H. Payne, 47, Buffalo, last Dec. 20 behind a downtown Buffalo tavern.

Detectives in Buffalo said they were told that Clearv acted as a lookout while two other men beat Payne during a robbery. Payne reportedly had displayed a large roll of bills in the tavern earlier, police said.

Wants Rate Raise

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Producers Gas Company of Olean has asked the Public Service Commission to raise its rates by about five per cent for approximately 4,690 of its 4,866 customers in Olean, Angelica, Belmont, Friendship and Portville.

The company Tuesday submitted an application to the PSC proposing reduced rates for customers using less than 800 cubic feet of gas a month. The PSC said this represented about 2.3 per cent of the company's customers.

Other rates would increase, including a 1.7 per cent boost in costs to industrial users. The company said it would obtain about $52,600 in additional revenue through the increase. It told the PSC it needed the money to meet higher operating costs.

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson has made clear to Congress that the Vietnam war has made a "deep imprint" on his budget, an imprint most Americans have felt for a year in their personal accounts.

Slight Attitude Change

The inflation we now have, and did have through most of 1966, is to a great degree the result of unexpectedly high spending in support of our military effort in Southeast Asia.

This year Johnson demonstrated a slightly changed attitude since his previous budget message. He still hopes for domestic health and wealth while paying for a war without wartime economic controls, even though it has never been done before.

Now, however, the impact of the costly war is being noted and we are called upon to make sacrifices. Even though its cost is only about 1-35th of our Gross National Product, Vietnam is pinching.

Recognition that the war is costly does not, however, foreordain the correct action. And the question now is how accurate are estimates that Vietnam will cost $22.4 billion in fiscal 1968, only $2.5 billion more than in 1967.

A year ago in Washington there was a tendency to underestimate the costs of war. This underestimate turned out to be a $10-billion error. We spent that much more than we had anticipated.

Added to Demand
Economists and perhaps some administration officials now feel that this mistake put a relentless demand upon an economy unable to meet it without inflation.

If the cost had been accurately assessed the administration would have had to consider increasing taxes to pay for it. Since it was not accurately foreseen, taxes were not raised. The economy overheated.

The apparent cause of last year's error was an assumption that the war would end sooner than is now foreseen.

The administration has indicated that no such assumptions are being made now. The budget nevertheless calls for an increase in expenditures of only $2.5 billion over spending in the July 1, 1966 — June 30, 1967 period. Is this enough?

Some Republicans will be quick to show they do not believe so. But, if there is to be an addition to spending they will seek subtractions elsewhere. They may not believe that "Great Society" spending has been "carefully selected on the basis of urgent national requirements."

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., has called for a big increase in American forces in South Vietnam. And Stennis is an influential member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Stennis foresees a need for 500,000 American troops in South Vietnam this year.

Serious Imbalances

Such a buildup would be costly, although it still would not be as large an increase as occurred in the latter part of 1966.

Last year's economic imbalances were serious. The cost of living rose. The pressure of wage and price demands shattered the economic guidelines. Money costs soared.

This year the administration is asking for a tax increase to pay for its added expenditures, but many of 1966's imbalances still remain and some critics feel a tax increase will only make them worse.

Johnson could cut spending. He believes, however, that he does not have this option — that deep budget cuts could cause a recession instead of a continuation of prosperity.

This critical balance — if it does exist as described in the budget — leaves little freedom for error. An underestimate could be costly.

WEST INDIES ASSOCIATED STATES

Something new under the Caribbean sun is the West Indies Associated States, a grouping of seven British-owned islands being upgraded politically from territorial status to states in association with Great Britain. Statehood day for St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla is Feb. 27, for Dominica and St. Lucia March 1 and for Grenada March 3. Total area is 970 square miles and population about 350,000. The islands' economies are based on tourism and agriculture. Principal crops are sugar, bananas, citrus fruits, cocoa, cotton and spices.

Ask Legislature OK 'Moonlight' For Policemen

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Legislature had before it today a proposal that would allow all of the 48,000 policemen in the state to "moonlight"—work at other jobs while off duty.

John J. Cassese, president of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association in New York City, and representatives of the statewide Police Conference asked the Legislature to permit moonlighting in a package of 72 bills designed to improve police working conditions.

"We want the moonlighting law so police can legally find part-time work to support their families," Cassese said. "There is nothing wrong with police driving taxicabs or working in stores."

Cassese said the recent wave of robberies and murders of New York City taxicab drivers has brought attention to the value of allowing off duty police to work as cabbies.

He said, however, that the New York City police union would oppose any special legislation designed to limit moonlighting to driving cabs.

"If a policeman is good enough to work as a cab driver, then he is good enough to work at any job," Cassese said.

Moonlighting is banned in police departments in most areas of the state, Cassese said, but its major impact is felt in New York City's 26,000-man force.

The bill will be introduced later this week by Assemblyman Robert Kelly, R-Brooklyn, and Sen. Jack E. Bronston, D-Queens, Cassese said.

The police union also seeks legislation that would approve an automatic $500 pay raise to a policeman who has served 20 years as an inducement to stay on beyond that retirement point.

Renamed to Commission

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Frank A. Pellegrino of Massena, N.Y., has been reappointed to the Thousand Islands State Park Commission for a term ending Jan. 31, 1974.

Gov. Rockefeller named Pellegrino to the unsalaried position Tuesday. Pellegrino retired two years ago as a vice president of the Marine Midland Trust Company in northern New York.

Wallace Takes Fight Against Cutoff to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama carries to the Senate Finance Committee today his state's fight against a cutoff of federal welfare funds.

Appearing as an assistant to Gov. Lurleen Wallace, his wife, and "as the person under whose administration all the fuss developed," Wallace argues, his state's case against a decision by Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner terminating the federal aid effective Feb. 28.

Denies Delay

Gardner said Alabama is the only state that has refused to give adequate assurance that it will administer public assistance and child welfare programs without racial discrimination. He ruled the state was not in compliance with the non-discrimination provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

On the eve of Wallace's appearance before the committee, Gardner denied an Alabama motion for postponement of the Feb. 28 cutoff date. The state last week filed suit in federal court in an attempt to block his order.

Alabama is receiving an estimated $95.8 million in federal welfare aid this fiscal year. Up to 200,000 persons would be affected by a cutoff.

Prior to the hearing, Wallace termed the dispute "a matter of grave principle."

"The principle is whether or not a bureaucrat can cut off funds to the blind and sick and elderly because an official of a state government office won't sign a regulation which we believe goes beyond the law," he said.

Alabama officials contend the Welfare Department's regulations go beyond the intent of the Civil Rights Act. They say they shouldn't be required to sign any assurance until courts have ruled on legality of the regulations.

DeGaulle Shuts Euromart Gate Anew on Britain

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle is shutting the gates of the European Common Market on Britain again for an indefinite time to come.

This seems the only conclusion to draw from his treatment of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's mission arguing the case for British entry.

Wilson flies home tonight with no more than an undertaking from De Gaulle to consult France's five Common Market partners but not before April, a month after the French parliamentary elections.

The encounter between the French and British leaders has been, behind the formalities, a battle for the high ground of European politics.

A French-led Europe would tend to look inward, toward the Ural Mountains on the east. It probably would resist the capture of industry after industry by the Americans.

A British-led Europe almost certainly would gaze across the western and southern oceans, seeing the world as one, cherishing its links with the New World.

The British are fairly sure they can count on the other five nations of the Common Market — West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg — to back any formal application they make to join their thriving customs union.

French Hold Trump

But the French hold a trump in the reality that the Common Market is a going concern in which all members are prospering and anxious to preserve that prosperity, while Britain is decidedly not prospering.

As usual, De Gaulle played the perfect host. He received Wilson and foreign Secretary George Brown graciously at the Elysee Palace Tuesday, invited Wilson to talk first and listened courteously while Wilson made Britain's case for a European destiny.

Then the frost began to descend.

De Gaulle declined to comment on the broad themes made by Wilson. He asked a few pointed questions, then set the issue aside for three months, until leaders of the Common Market states hold a summit meeting in Rome.

Wilson characteristically took the issues to the people of France and of Europe over the head of the French government. Addressing the Council of Europe in Strasbourg Monday, he said if his bid to enter the Common Market fails, "the fault will not lie at Britains door." It was a challenge to De Gaulle to say no as he did four years ago.

Rocky Cautions '67 Delegates On Lobbyists

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller cautioned delegates to the forthcoming State Constitutional Convention today to be on guard against what he termed the danger of "undue influence" by lobbyists.

The Republican governor sounded that note of warning as delegates convened on Albany at his invitation for a get-acquainted meeting.

Bridges Earmarked

GOP delegates arranged a caucus for designation of a convention minority leader. The post was earmarked for Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges.

In remarks prepared for a gathering of the 186 convention delegates, Rockefeller pledged to do "everything within my power" to help create a spirit of Republican - Democratic harmony at the convention, which begins April 4.

He appealed for "statesmanship and courage of the highest order," asserting there was "always a danger in a convention that lobbyists seeking particular advantages or privileges for special interests will have an undue influence."

"This must be resisted," the governor declared. "It must be resisted by the delegates."

Rockefeller noted that the delegates had been assigned by the voters to simplify and streamline the State Constitution.

He said. "The convention not only will determine, in a major way, the future of the people, communities and government of New York State; it will also, because of New York's traditional position of importance among the states, have a significant influence on the future course and development of the American Federal System."

Virtual Certainty

Selection of the 61-year-old Brydges for the convention's minority leadership became a virtual certainty last week when Rockefeller reportedly threw his support to the veteran Niagara County lawmaker. Even before the governor indicated his leanings toward the majority leader, it was reported, a substantial number of commitments had been obtained for Brydges from GOP delegates.

The governor's move prompted GOP State Chairman Carl Spad last week to call the 84 delegates to a party caucus.

Others who had sought the job include Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea Jr. of Montauk, Suffolk County, and former Assemblyman Richard J. Bartlett of Glens Falls, chairman of the State Commission to Revise the Penal Law and Criminal Code.

Travia President

The presidency at the convention was handed by Democratic delegates last Monday to the Assembly's Democratic Speaker, Anthony J. Travia.

Rockefeller's expression of concern over "undue influence" by lobbyists came amid legislative moves designed to keep lobbying at the convention under tight control.

At Travia's behest, the Assembly has passed a convention-lobby bill. But Brydges has objected to some features of the measure and has indicated he wants a Republican bill covering the same area.

GEORGE V. DENNIS

Named to New Scout Post in Jersey Council

Formerly Scout Executive George V. Dennis of Rip Van Winkle Council Boy Scouts of America, and currently serving in that capacity for the Steuben Area Council with headquarters at Bath, N. Y., has resigned from the Southwestern New York community council to accept a position with the Southern New Jersey Council which covers four counties in the Garden state — Gloucester, Salem, Cumberland and Camp May.

Dennis' new position places him in charge of a staff of six district executives plus an assistant scout executive in charge of program.

Started Here in 1951

March 1, 1951 marked the beginning of Dennis' local leadership as scout executive of the Rip Van Winkle Council. In the six years he served the local organization, the membership more than doubled—from 1,284 boys in 62 units to 2,820 boys in 111 units. Since the start of his administration with the Steuben Area Council in 1957, the number of boys served has grown from 3,512 to a high of 4,333.

During Dennis' years as local scout executive, the council's Camp Tri-Mount, located in Greene County, was expanded and additional facilities provided for the enjoyment of boys who preferred camping on a year round basis.

Active in Community

During the past 10 years Dennis and his wife, Mildred, have been active in the Mariner's Club of the First Presbyterian Church, Bath, and Dennis has served two three-year terms as a trustee of the church. He also served as president of the Bath Kiwanis Club in 1961. While a resident of Kingston, Dennis was a member of Kingston Kiwanis Club.

The Dennis have two children, Barbara, wife of Robert M. Hawk of Bath, and Bruce, a freshman at St. Lawrence University.

The Southern New Jersey Council where Dennis will become scout executive, serves over 9,000 boys in over 300 units.

Cuba Puts Off Carnival

The February festivities thus will not interfere with the sugar harvest, now in full swing, said a Cuban newscast monitored in Miami.

Havana Mayor Levy Farach, who announced the change, also called for volunteer cane cutters.

Last year, Cuba officially observed Holy Week by cutting cane, with Fidel Castro, President Osvaldo Dorticos and other officials as volunteers.

Congregational Needs Teachers

Church school meets at 10 a. m. each Sunday at First Congregational Church, Saugerties. New friends are always welcome to join in this Christian education and Tommy Cole will lead school devotions this week. Sermon topic for this Sunday will be "Vain Imaginations and Our Faith." Church services are at 11 a. m.

Church school, which is the basis of the future church, is presently in need of several women willing to volunteer as substitute teachers. The need for a substitute arises quite frequently and it is often difficult to find a replacement in the short time given. Those interested in volunteering should contact Mrs. Swart.

Annual congregational meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 2, to review work and activity during 1966. The meeting will be an important and informative one and all are urged to attend at 7:30 p. m.

Wednesday, Feb. 8, marks the beginning of Lent and a prayer and worship meeting will be held that evening at 7:30 p. m. A memorial gift in the amount of $120 has been made to the building fund and for new study materials in the name of the late William Steiger by his mother.

Those interested in seeing the work of the Youth Choir expanded should contact Mrs. Cole. Copies of the "Message" are still available for those who have not received them. Work at the parsonage is continuing well and last April's rubble-strewn area now houses two fine apartments. Men of the church have kept the work moving along and the upstairs apartment should be occupied shortly. A full-scale appraisal of what the parsonage can mean to the congregation is planned soon.

Traditional in Saugerties in connection with the Mothers March and to be held in 1967 for the 10th consecutive year, will be an event at Paul Barca's Shell service station, Route 9W, Barclay Heights. Barca will donate all profits from the sale of gasoline at his station this Saturday to the Mothers March of Dimes. Local residents are urged to have their tanks filled at the station that day to aid this worthy cause.

Hearings Planned On Legislation To Control Guns

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A legislative committee plans a series of public hearings on proposed gun legislation that would require a central registry for all purchases of firearms and ammunition.

Assemblyman Thomas LaFauci, D-Queens, chairman of the Codes Committee, said Tuesday the hearings would be Feb. 15 in Albany, Feb. 24 in New York City and March 2 in Buffalo.

Lists 50 Gun Bills
LaFauci said his committee had about 50 gun bills before it. Meanwhile, a Democratic assemblyman sent a shiver through the Assembly Tuesday as he emphasized proposals aimed at controlling gun sales. Leonard P. Stavisky, also of Queens, turned quietly to a long box on a table in the well of the chamber and withdrew a surplus foreign army rifle of the type used in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Then he took a U.S. Army carbine from the box and, pointing it at the ceiling, recalled it was the same type of weapon used by Charles Whitman, who killed 14 persons in a shooting spree at the University of Texas last year.

Bought in City

Next he exhibited a semi-automatic weapon that resembled a sub-machine gun and said it had been purchased at the same New York City store at which a berserk gunman purchased a rifle and later killed two persons.

In all cases, Stavisky asserted that the weapons were bought without question.

Stavisky's fellow assemblymen stirred uneasily as he produced the weapons. "Don't point it this way," said one Republican.

Returns Home

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP)—Gunnar Jansson, who spent 17 years in prison for the robbery-slaving of a Bronx shopkeeper, was enroute home today to his native Sweden.

The 52-year-old former seaman was released Tuesday from Attica State Prison for deportation to his native country.

Jansson was given a new suit and $20 in release money by prison authorities.

He made no comment. Warden Vincent Mancusi said:

He left the prison in the custody of two U.S. immigration officers. The party drove to Buffalo and boarded a train Tuesday night for New York City.

Immigration officials plan to put Jansson aboard an airplane today for the final leg of his journey home.

The State Parole Board granted Jansson a parole Jan. 11.

He was convicted, along with Sven Hallberg, another Swedish national, in the fall of 1949 in the strangling of Lee Hong on Jan. 5 of that same year. The shopkeeper also was robbed of $506 in merchandise.

Both were sentenced to life imprisonment.

RFK Going Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., will meet with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, French President Charles de Gaulle and other top officials of the two nations during a brief trip to Europe, starting Wednesday.

Kennedy's office said Tuesday that New York State's junior senator also may visit Bonn.

Kennedy is among six senators and nine representatives flying to London for an annual conference with British lawmakers.

The U.S. Constitution is about to acquire a new amendment, the 25th in the nation's history. Approved by Congress and submitted to the states in 1965, the so-called "presidential disability" amendment outlines steps to meet emergencies arising when a president is unable to handle the duties of his office. It also provides for selection of a successor to a vice president succeeding to the presidency. At the start of 1967, 31 states had ratified the amendment—seven short of the necessary three-fourths of all states. Since no serious opposition has developed, it is expected to have smooth sailing in legislatures, 15 of them convening in January, that have not yet acted.

PSC to Conduct Probe Of Gas Distribution

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Public Service Commission has under way an investigation of all gas distribution systems in the state, in the aftermath of a near disastrous fire caused by a Queens gas explosion.

James A. Lundy, PSC chairman, said the investigation, begun Tuesday, was a "preliminary step" in an overall study that could result in tightening of the state's gas safety code.

Utilities providing gas service are under orders to survey existing systems and report findings to the commission within 30 days.

Lundy also ordered the utilities to conduct leakage surveys at drip pots and plugs and promptly repair any leaks.

A drip pot is a device installed on a gas main to collect condensation. The fire two weeks ago in Queens resulted from a malfunction in a drip pot, the PSC has said.

The utilities also were directed to review construction, operation and maintenance of valves in the distribution systems.

First plant for making collapsible metal tubes was established in 1870 at Philadelphia.

Indict Ex-State Man

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Ellis K. Douthitt Jr., 26, formerly of Rochester, N.Y., is under a federal indictment on a charge of kidnapping an 18-year-old El Paso, Tex., night club entertainer and taking her to New Mexico.

A federal grand jury returned the indictment Tuesday in the Jan. 3 incident.

Even the ash tray rides smoother in Chevrolets

When you're down at your dealer's trying out a new Chevrolet, be sure you pull out the ash tray. Notice how nice and easy it glides, never hanging up or even scraping. The reason is, it rides on ball bearings. Four shiny little ball bearings. (Take the tray all the way out and you'll see them.) That ash tray is a symbol of the way we make cars: Paying attention to the little things as well as the big ones, as a way of making sure your '67 Chevrolet gives you

Hints from Heloise by Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

More about old cookie sheets: I put my cookie sheet down on an old board, took a hammer and nail, punched holes (from inside out) in rows, making them about an inch or so apart. There are about 35 holes in my standard-size cookie sheet.

I place this punctured cookie sheet over the rack of the broiler when cooking hamburger patties, and the patties don't go down between the grates.

This is also a wonderful gadget to use on your oven racks especially for frozen French fries because they get hot faster, as do rolls, fish sticks, etc.

The bottom crusts of frozen pies always get done faster. I just couldn't do without my punctured pan. It's the greatest.

Letter of Laughter

A reader recently wrote that since there were just the two of them in the family she rotated her dishes in order to give them even wear.

I have a solution that works better for me.

I just let all of my dishes get dirty, and then wash them together in the dishwasher — and what could be more EVEN than that?

Jean

Dear Heloise:

I had some old end tables and a coffee table, so to put them to good use (as well as storing them):

I put them in my closets to store hat boxes, suitcases, and dozen of things that clutter our closets!

This really keeps things neat and tidy.

Mrs. B.

Dear Heloise:

Polish remover removes nail polish. It also removes the sticky mess left by adhesive tape, and the household cement that I always get on my fingers when I use it.

Dot

I tried it and bless you, you're right! I smeared some rubber cement on my wrist, let it dry thoroughly, put a little polish remover on a tissue, very gently rubbed the cement, and it just sort of rolled off!

But be careful what you use polish remover on...it also removes the finish of many articles.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I believe I can answer the city slicker's question concerning false windows on some farm buildings.

In many cases they are not false windows, but outline sections of the building which can be removed to facilitate the storage of hay and grain.

Lowell Price

Dear Heloise:

When I'm crocheting with white thread, I place a plain black skirt or a piece of black material across my lap so that all I actually see is the pattern I am working.

Any other design or color background is hard on the eyes.

M. J. H.

Dear Heloise:

I sent my daughter to the store for some biscuit mix to use as a topping for a fruit cobbler I was baking.

Instead, she brought home some canned biscuits from the refrigerator counter, so I did the next best thing.

I split each biscuit in half crosswise, put them on the cobbler and lo and behold, a decorative topping—if I may say so.

E. T.

Dear Heloise:

If you're a flower fan, attach a few artificial bees, birds, flowers (from dime store) and the like among your houseplants.

They make a conversation piece, as well as being so cheery when the "real" ones are not around.

State Police PBA Backs Trooper Seeking Benefits

ALBANY — State Police PBA President William J. Courlis of Central Bridge today announced full Association support of Trooper William J. Brennan of Troop "C," Sidney, in his claim for Workman's Compensation benefits for injuries sustained in an "off-duty" police action.

The ultimate disposition of Trooper Brennan's claim is of vital interest to more than 50,000 career policemen in the state, many of whom are called upon or voluntarily undertake police action while in "off-duty" status.

Trooper Brennan, 31, is a resident of the Sullivan County community of Jeffersonville, where he is popularly known to be a member of the New York State Police.

On Sept. 21, 1965, while at home in "off-duty" status, Trooper Brennan was called upon by a neighbor to extricate and assist an injured woman driver pinned in her car as a result of a one-car motor vehicle accident in the vicinity of Brennan's home.

Brennan immediately responded in his personal car and took complete charge at the accident scene.

Brennan commandeered the assistance of onlookers to set out warning flares, which he provided, to procure blankets to cover the accident victim, to call medical assistance and an ambulance.

Using the car radio of the responding doctor, he called his station at Ferndale for additional State Police assistance.

While lifting the accident victim to place her upon a stretcher, Trooper Brennan wrenched and strained his back. This injury, notwithstanding prompt and continuing medical treatment, has cost Trooper Brennan approximately $90 in medical fees and supplies and eight days sick leave time since the accident. These items he seeks to be reimbursed in his Workman's Compensation claim. In addition, his claim if successful will establish the State's liability for any permanent disability and future expense resulting from

At least 30 days of contact with hostile forces in Vietnam is required to be eligible for the award.

Spec. Gorman entered the Army in November 1965 and was stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., before arriving overseas in October 1966.

Tourney Bidding Skill Pays Off

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Here is a hand which really shows the American team trials players at their best. Looking at all the cards one can see that North and South can wrap up either seven clubs or seven hearts and that it should not be hard to get to one of those grand slams."

Jim: "The great trouble is that in this type competition no one is left to his own devices." Oswald: "There was plenty of bidding static from East and West. The toughest series of bids came from Mike Lawrence and Lew Stansby. Lawrence overcalled with four spades. Marshall Miles bid four no-trump with the North hand and Stansby, sitting East, jumped to six spades."

Jim: "This type of bid is known as a premature sacrifice. Stansby was going to go to six spades in any event. He decided to bid it early and hope for the best. The best happened. South passed to give his partner a chance to go to seven hearts but North decided to double and take a sure profit. It was a point profit but not a match point profit since 700 plus was low score and meant a loss of 12 International Match Points."

Oswald: "The next best East-West score went to Kehela and Murray. Kehela overcalled with two spades, which did not keep North and South from getting to seven but Murray showed why he is one of four most successful competitors by going to seven spades and taking the save for a profit of nine IMP's."

Jim: "The other three North-South pairs were allowed to play the hand at a grand slam. Roth and Root gained an extra IMP by getting to seven hearts while Freeman-Feldsman and Kaplan-Kay played in seven clubs."

Outline of Red Cross 1966 Activity Notes Banner Year

Service to the families of military personnel, preparations of "ditty bags" and layettes, taping of messages, locating of missing relatives, together with the routine services of the American Red Cross made 1966 a busy year for the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross. Increased numbers serving in the Armed Forces, popularity of the Red Cross water safety programs, and additional interests in first aid training programs all helped make this last year a "banner Red Cross year" in Ulster County.

attended a three-day session from June 15 through 17 at Skidmore College Saratoga Springs. Attendance was limited to 30 employed key staff from major chapters in Region I, which includes New York, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Vermont.

Not to be outdone by their elders, young people in Ulster County showed their awareness of needs of others by preparing friendship boxes and kits for shipment to children in other lands, by obtaining Christmas gifts for shipment to servicemen in Vietnam, and by participating in an art contest in which posters were designed to show "Red Cross in Action." Winners of the art contest, announced in April, were Martha Schiller, St. Joseph's School, New Paltz; Susan Boyer, Marlborough Elementary School, and Katharine Orlovsky, St. Joseph's School, New Paltz.

Organized by graduate students Mrs. Gail Schram, Milton, and Roy Allen, Kingston, more than 600 students at the New York State University, New Paltz, responded to a Department of Defense appeal for blood for servicemen in Vietnam by volunteering to contribute when the Red Cross bloodmobile visited the college on May 16. 267 pints were drawn.

For the second time in as many years, pupils at St. Joseph's School, Kingston, under the leadership of Sister Mary Peter, conducted an appeal for Christmas gifts for servicemen in Vietnam. As a result of their efforts, several boxes of gifts were forwarded for distribution by the field directors of the American Red Cross who are stationed with the troops at San Francisco APOs 96277, 96266 and 96215.

Under the chairmanship of volunteer Daniel H. Morehouse of Woodstock, the first aid training program of the Ulster County Chapter has continued to increase in popularity. Since first aid training is now mandatory for ski patrol members and for personnel of private ambulance services in New York State and since various other groups are becoming increasingly aware of its importance, the need for additional volunteer first aid instructors was apparent.

In October First Aid Instructor Trainer Donald L. Beaumont of Mohog Lake conducted a 16-hour first aid instructor course which 19 persons completed satisfactorily.

Among the groups for whom Ulster County instructors conducted first aid courses during 1966 were town constables, police officers, ski patrols, rescue squads, ambulance services, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, fire companies, private industrial plants, college professors, social welfare groups and interested lay persons.

Popular with many service groups throughout the county has been the project of making and contributing layettes for the use by Vietnamese newborns. This program initiated in June at the request of the Vietnamese Red Cross, has enabled the National Red Cross to assume a quota of 25,000 of these layettes for the fiscal year. Our chapter was fortunate in securing extremely good cooperation in helping to meet the goal by many women's church groups, some other service groups and even members of women's political organizations.

As has been the case for many years, the water safety program in Ulster County is extremely popular and active. Water Safety Volunteer Chairman, J. Brian Steeves, Kingston R. D., and his group of more than 230 authorized Red Cross water safety instructors served more facilities and issued more certificates for the completion of courses than ever before. With the completion of their indoor pool at the State University at New Paltz the physical education program there now offers all courses from beginner through instructor.

Resigns in Controversy

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—The superintendent of Cornell University's safety division, who set off a student protest last week by confiscating 130 copies of a student literary magazine, has resigned his position.

Cornell President James A. Perkins announced Tuesday the resignation of James M. Herson, effective immediately. Herson did not mention his confiscation of the magazine, "The Trojan Horse," last Thursday in his letter to Perkins. He said, however, that he believed he was "no longer able to be effective in the position."

Perkins thanked Herson for his nine years of service to the university and praised him for organizing "an outstanding campus staff." A successor was not named.

Last Thursday, when Herson read an article in the magazine, he told university officials that it contained what he believed to be an obscene article.

It was a 14-page chronicle of a young man's sex life, entitled "Selections from a Journal of David Murray." An administration official Thursday night ordered the magazine's editors to "on distribution."

Friday, more than 1,000 students protested the administration's action.

Pay for Privilege of Working

In an age of affluence and idealism, high school and college students are now paying for the privilege of spending their summer vacations at hard work in exchange for the chance to "stretch the mind or move the imagination," McCall's disclosed yesterday.

A task force of three editors (one of them is Lynda Bird Johnson), reported in the magazine's current issue that "some people are willing to spend a little money in return for a more meaningful summer."

Their nationwide survey of summer openings showed that students must apply immediately—and pay about $1,000 each—for the 250 jobs offered by "Operation Crossroads Africa." For their money, the young people get to use their talents at work camps throughout Africa and receive, in return, "seminars, study tours and experience in the life of the continent's rural areas."

"Last summer, more than 25,000 high school and college students went to work under a program that did not pay anything—Operation Head Start, part of the War on Poverty. The youthful volunteers "helped half a million pre-school children by taking them on outings, reading to them and giving them instruction in arts and crafts," the youth panel said.

Among the "jobs you pay for" listed in the article were slum rehabilitation in New Windsor, Md., Mexico City and Cyprus; community-service tutoring sponsored by the Methodist Church; Luther League Work Camps in the U. S. and Honduras, remodeling a church in rural Missouri, building a recreation center on an Indian reservation or installing showers in a school in a depressed area of Kentucky.

New Ideas, Trends for Teens

There's an exciting new year stretching ahead and it's filled to the brim with smashing new ideas and swinging new trends for teens—in fashion, fun and beauty.

In fashion, at least one ankle-length burnoose is a must in your wardrobe. You can sew them in a snap in printed cotton to perk up your spirits while doing homework—or splurge on one in silk or velvet for party evenings or after-ski. Be sure to save one for summer—they make wonderful beach cover-ups.

The accessories game is fun to play if you know the rules. Scarves should be abstract or very flowery and might turn up tied around your hair at the nape of your neck, or around the strap of a shoulder bag for a splash of color. Cut-out driving gloves in pastel or wow colors are great with practically every casual outfit.

Different Party Ideas

Looking for a different idea for your next party? Would you believe a "happening?" A "happening" can be almost anything—as long as it's different. Here are a few ideas to get you started...

If you have a tape recorder have a song "happening." Split into groups and see who can come up with the best improvised song. You don't have to be musical geniuses—and you may surprise yourselves when you play back the tape.

How about a television "happening?" Choose a favorite TV show and let everyone play one of the characters for an ad lib performance. Or mix up the shows—like "Batman Meets the Man From Uncle." You can have any kind of a "happening," there's no limit to the possibilities. Just use your imagination.

Frederic Snyder Lauds Murphy at K of C Presentation

The symbolism of the Murphy Memorial Gavel and its marble base were explained by well known speaker and world traveler Frederic Snyder last week during a meeting of the Kingston Knights of Columbus to honor the late Patrick T. Murphy.

According to Snyder, who had the gavel and base made up from materials taken during renovation of the Board of Election office, the set was being donated by him in honor of Murphy.

He said the four raised circles adorning the gavel represent the community and family circle which Murphy served, along with the circle of truth and the "celestial circle of loved ones with whom he now is united."

The wood itself brings to mind the Cross on which Christ suffered and the marble sounding base represents the tomb "which so briefly housed our Redeemer."

Lauding Murphy throughout his talk, Snyder urged members of the chapter to "Make K of C tonight to mean a 'Kingstonian of Character.'"

Snyder was introduced by Past Grand Knight Joseph F. Saccoman, who cited him for his Knights of Columbus work and for his service as Commissioner of the Kingston Board of Public Works and as Commissioner in the Ulster County Board of Elections.

Saccoman also noted Snyder has served as military aid for the late Governor Alfred E. Smith and "has received enumerable honors in all walks of life."

Dear Abby ... Teacher May Hold Key to Problem

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have tried to solve my problem myself, but it has gone too far for me.

I have a 13-year-old son who is an only child, and my husband babies him to death. Anything Ronnie wants, Ronnie gets.

Well, Ronnie has been out of school going on the fifth week. He says he doesn't feel well and his father believes him and lets him stay home. I know Ronnie could go to school if he wanted to, because the minute the bus is gone Ronnie feels better. He spends the day watching TV, eating and fooling around.

If I try to make him go to school, his father says I am being "mean." I am not mean, Abby, I am only trying to do what's best for the boy. Can you help me? "MEAN" MOM

DEAR MOM: Let a doctor examine Ronnie and decide whether or not he is well enough to go to school. Then go a step further and find out WHY Ronnie doesn't want to go to school. A conference with his teacher might be the key to the whole problem.

DEAR ABBY: I just married the greatest girl in the world but she's a terrible cook. So far I have been telling her the meals are terrific, but she is not getting any better and I don't know how much longer I can stand it.

Shall I tell her her meals are not fit to eat so she will improve them, or should I just hope she will improve with practice while I suffer in silence? G. E. IN HOUSTON

DEAR G. E.: Tell your bride that you've been trying to be patient about her cooking but her batting average hasn't improved. A few cooking lessons — and a loving pinch (of care) in the kitchen might help.

DEAR ABBY: My question is, "How many baby showers is one person entitled to, anyway?"

I have a cousin who has had a baby every year for the past nine years and somebody in the family has promoted a baby shower for each one. The only time I ever hear from anyone in that tribe is when they want a gift for someone.

Isn't there a rule of etiquette that says you aren't supposed to give a baby shower for the same person more than three times? Let me know. SHOWED TO DEATH

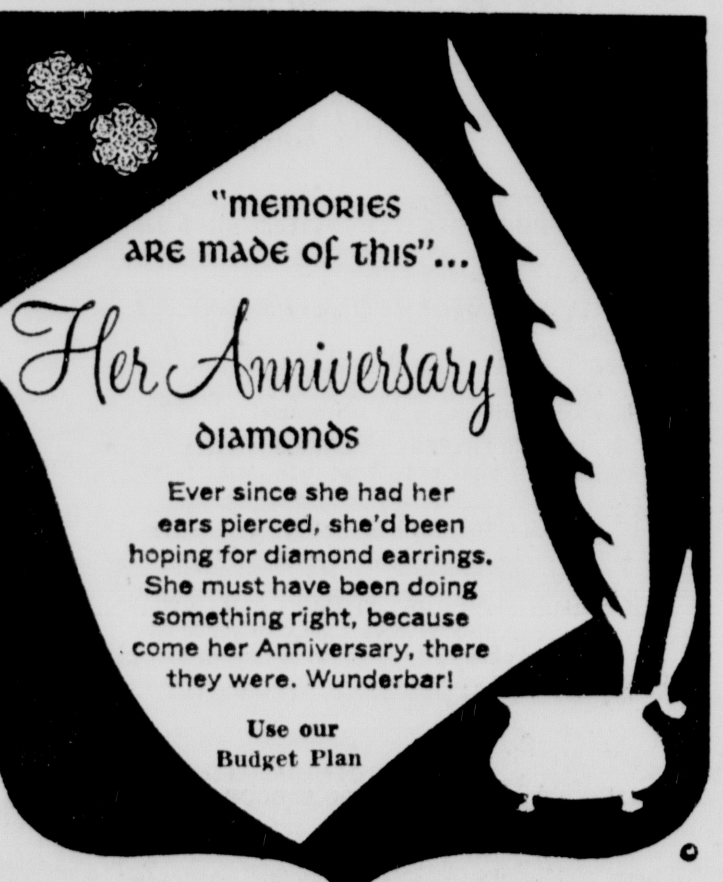

DEAR SHOWERED: The only rule I know covering showers is that everyone who gets tapped, gets soaked.

DEAR ABBY: What, in your opinion, motivates people to go into teaching? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I can't generalize about what "motivates" teachers. But thank God for it.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. © 1967 by Chicago Trib.-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

Auerbach Concedes

Battle Is Lost But Not War

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Red Auerbach apparently has given up the skirmish, but he still plans to win the war. The outspoken general manager of the Boston Celtics came to Philadelphia a few hours before his team defeated the 76ers 118-106 Tuesday night and made a few pertinent observations about the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division race.

Noting that the Celtics are second in the East, nine games behind the leader 76ers, Auerbach said:

"When I coached the Washington Capitols we won the regular season title with a record of 49-11 during the 1946-47 season and got whipped in the playoffs."

"And one of my Boston teams won the Eastern Division by 14 or more games and got whipped in the playoffs."

Jones Leads With 38

Sam Jones scored 38 points while the famed Boston defense held Philadelphia to 11 points in the all-important last 10 minutes. That's when Philadelphia watched a 95-94 lead melt into a 12-point loss.

Hal Greer was high for the 76ers with 23 points.

At New York, Oscar Robertson scored 37 points and handed out 11 assists in leading the Cincinnati Royals to 126-118 victory over the Knicks. Adrian Smith contributed 28 points, 21 in the second half when the Royals broke the game open. Willis Reed scored 21 for the Knicks.

The Detroit Pistons easily defeated the Bulls 108-85 at Chicago.

Kingston Patrolmen's Association won over Jaycees, 37-24, and Lions edged Kiwanis, 23-18, in Biddy basketball Tuesday.

Tough Road Ahead, But ...

Post-Season Tourney Possibility for Army

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The basketball caissons are rolling at West Point.

That means if all goes well the Black Knights of The Hudson once more will be in a post-season tournament in March.

Paced by Bill Schutsky's 37 points, the Army Cadets chalked up their fourth in a row by overwhelming Massachusetts 68-42 Tuesday.

That topped Army's overall record to 7-6. If the Cadets can follow through against Boston University, Fordham, Penn State, Manhattan, St. John's, Rutgers, NYU and Navy in their remaining games, they are virtually certain to land a post-season tournament berth.

In other home court victories on Tuesday's slim program, Cincinnati crushed Centenary 100-76, East Carolina beat George Washington 79-73, Arizona

St. Lawrence Skaters

Topple Queens, 5-0

CANTON, N.Y. (AP) — St. Lawrence University smashed Queens University, Ont., Tuesday night in a 7-2 hockey match that saw the Larries holding a fat, 5-0 lead going into the third period.

Tucker Mayer scored two goals, his first of the year, to pace the victors to a current 8-4 record for the season.

Bob Clayton and Doug Cunningham scored for Queens, which now has a 5-5 record.

Ron Waske made 21 saves for St. Lawrence in the only hockey contest involving Upstate college teams. Bart Lackie blocked 28 for the losers.

Both Benvenuti and his manager were laid up with a touch of the flu Tuesday after watching Griffith gain his narrow decision victory over Joey Archer at the Garden Monday night.

After watching Griffith beat Dick Tiger last April 25 and Archer, Benvenuti said he was not too impressed with the champion.

Benvenuti, 28, won the Olympic welterweight championship in 1960 and has lost only once in 120 amateur and 70 pro fights.

The defeat cost him his world junior middleweight title. He went to South Korea and lost a 15-round decision to Kim Ki-Soo last June 25.

Robins Visit Miami, Bad North Harbinger

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — South Florida's word for drifters who come here to escape the Northern winter is "snowbirds" — and today, the snowbirds included large flocks of robins.

Thousands of redbreasts have flown into the Miami area in recent days to gobble fresh-grown berries and tug worms out of unfrozen ground.

Dr. Oscar Owe of the University of Miami's Zoology Department said the robins' arrival "usually follows a protracted cold wave in the north."

Some South Floridians enjoy the noisy show when robin flocks swoop in. Crop growers, however, are less hospitable.

Rocky Names Broome Judge

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today appointed Robert E. Fischer of Endwell, a veteran investigating attorney, as judge of the Broome County Court.

Fischer was tapped to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Louis M. Greenblatt, who is now a Supreme Court judge.

Fischer, 40, is a Cornell Law School graduate who served as Broome County district attorney from 1952 through 1956. From 1958 to 1962, he served as a special assistant attorney general in charge of a state investigation into crime in Utica. In 1965 and 1966, he headed a state probe into the purchase and sale of the post office garage in Buffalo.

Fischer and his wife, Betty, have two children.

They live at 3700 Country Club Road, Endwell.

In 1920, Kenesaw Mountain Landis served as the first commissioner of professional baseball.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market had a slightly higher edge in a mixed and active market early today.

The ticker tape ran late and some large blocks were traded. Gains of fractions to a point or so outnumbered losers in the same range. Averages were a bit higher.

Financial institutions still had not satisfied their portfolio needs, analysts said, and they saw the rise continuing mainly because of this long-deferred appetite for stocks.

Johnson & Johnson leaped another 3 points in further response to its stock split proposal. Gains of about a point were made by General Dynamics, RCA, Kenecott, New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad.

Down well over a point were Xerox and American Airlines.

Jensen's dropped 1 at 13% on a block of 150,900 shares, putting it far ahead of the rest of the list on volume.

Brunswick rose 1/2 to 9 1/2 on 35,000 shares. Control Data rose 1/2 to 48 1/2 on 15,400 shares.

Opening blocks included: Standard Oil (New Jersey), up 1/2 at 6 1/2 on 7,000 shares; General Motors, off 1/2 at 76 1/2 on 3,300; and SCM Corp., off 2 1/2 at 65 1/2 on 9,000.

Tuesday The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1 to 3 1/2.

Work Progresses Rapidly on New School for Paltz

Construction on the new senior high school on South Putt Corners road has been progressing in spite of the cold weather. While very little of the work can be seen because it is below ground level, much has been done.

Site clearing is 98 per cent complete and 84 per cent of the site excavation and rough grading have been finished. Very little rock was encountered in the grading and excavation with the result that a credit of approximately $11,000 will be realized on the rock allowance in the contract.

Footings and foundation walls to grade are 90 per cent completed and in the basement area work on the reinforced concrete walls is nearing completion.

The underfloor drainage system for the gymnasium section and classroom wing is completed as is the underfloor sanitary system in the auditorium section and the classroom wing. Underfloor roughing has been completed to the toilets in the auditorium section.

Well Driven

One well has been driven to a depth of 300 feet with a yield of about seven gallons per minute. Arrangements are being made for the installation of a temporary pump to furnish water for construction.

Temporary electrical service has been provided for the field offices and for construction purposes. Conduit, etc. is on the site and the main service conduit has been partially installed.

All footings and foundation walls have been backfilled and protected from the elements.

Work to Stop

It is anticipated that after all reinforced concrete walls of the basement areas have been completed no major work will be done until weather conditions permit full resumption of construction.

In the meantime specifications for the various types of equipment are being drawn up and bids are being advertised and awarded. Contracts have already been awarded for the auditorium and gymnasium seating.

No problems are anticipated in having the building completed and ready for occupancy in September 1968.

Tighten Macao Boycott

MACAO (AP) — Pro-Communist Chinese tightened a boycott squeeze on Macao's Portuguese today in an attempt to force the colony's government to say publicly that eight Chinese killed during pro-Communist riots in early December were "murdered."

Stores refused to sell food to Portuguese. Buses and taxis refused to take them aboard. Restaurants, hotels and barber shops refused them service.

BUDGET TALK—President Johnson and his budget director, Charles Schultze, have a last-minute run down before the President revealed his budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The President, in asking for $73.1 billion for defense, said he expected a "searching examination" of the budget by Congress but warned the lawmakers against large slashes that he said would seriously impair "vital national objectives." Extension Service, as "normal" for the opening day.

However today and Thursday are expected to be the "big days" of the session. Sparked by the talks of both Commissioner Cathers and Congressman Resnick at the afternoon session followed by the annual banquet this evening, today's attendance was expected to be a record.

Members of the 4-H will come into their own on Thursday when the apple pie contest will attract 4-Hers from eight counties. The pie contest will get under way at 10 a. m. with the eight apple pie bakers contesting for top honors.

To Complete

The apple pie bakers have been previously selected, one from each of the eight participating counties. Ulster County's apple pie contestant is Anna Mary Portz of Hurley.

Another feature of the Society's program is the fruit demonstration which will be conducted Thursday by 40 4-H Club participants from 10 counties. These demonstrations will be of any fruit grown in the Hudson Valley. Following the fruit demonstrations the participants will be tendered a luncheon at the Governor Clinton Hotel at which time certificates will be awarded to those participating in the demonstrations.

Local girls participating in the demonstrations Thursday will be Judy Ablove of Kingston, Cathy and Kristin Schoonmaker of Stone Ridge and Deborah Woodward of Hurley.

Kingston will host the Eastern meeting of the State Horticultural Society again in 1968, according to action taken at the meeting held in Rochester. Dates of the meetings will be announced later.

The 1967 session will close Thursday with a full program of interesting discussions with President Edward Crist of Walden presiding at the morning session.

Beginning at 10 a. m. Thursday there will be discussions on mechanization in apple harvesting, processing of apples, a report on research on mechanical harvesting aids for McIntosh apples by Lester Whitney of the University of Massachusetts. Research on the Plateau Harvesting will be subject of Mark D. Shaw of Pennsylvania University and at the afternoon session mechanical pruning, a report on apples growing in the Northwest, and talk on solid fuel heaters by C. G. Forshey of the Hudson Valley Research Laboratory, will bring the 1967 session to a close.

he had asked that the mayor's budget be brought out for a vote. Prior to the meeting, he said, "I told him it is the only budget that we have to study, and they did not answer me." No copies of the committee budget were available.

He said he was "refused the floor three times by the president, Mr. Koenig. I asked for a minority report to be brought out, and someone moved for adjournment. Then someone in the majority party moved for a recess and this was granted, but while it was still trying to get the floor, I was completely ignored."

Will Cost $4,000

By delaying action on the budget, he said, "it will cost the taxpayers $4,000 in interest. I have studied the mayor's budget very carefully, and went over it with him. With urban renewal going on downtown, houses and properties taken off the tax roll, pay raises and insurance benefits given in his budget to all city employees, and a cut in the tax rate of 42 cents, I think it is a good budget, even though it is the Democratic budget."

Alderman-at-Large Koenig asked that Majority Leader James F. Howard (D) 10th Ward Minority Leader Machine and Gallo, finance committee chairman, meet with the mayor to discuss the budget before the council meets again.

Mayor Garraghan's tentative budget, lists $4,120,630.08 in general government expenses, $2,036,957.50 in estimated revenue, and $2,897,106 to be raised by taxes. The 1966 sum to be raised by taxes was $2,901,242.67.

was struck the massive storm pushed into the St. Louis area with golf-ball size hail heavy rains and lightning.

The storm also bore a twist which hit the heavily populated North St. Louis County area leaving two children dead more than 200 injured and property damage that officials said would run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

'Just Lifted Her Up'

Mike Clarkson 16 was standing in his front yard with his mother, Norma Clarkson. "The wind just lifted her up and slammed her into a post," Mrs. Clarkson was among 25 known to have been hospitalized overnight in the St. Louis area. She suffered head injuries. Most of the 200 injured suffered cuts and bruises and were treated and released.

The dead at St. Louis were Dianne Schleez, 4, of suburban Creve Coeur and Jeri Allison Cannady 6 of St. Louis County.

"I don't know what happened," said Evelyn Cannady. "The house just caved in." Her husband Roy was injured.

Arthur Schleez father of Dianne said "We heard a great roar. Everything went black." Dianne was found under a pile of debris in the home.

Wall Collapses Under Wind

The downstate Illinois farmer died when a tornado leveled his home.

At least 13 persons a bus driver and 12 passengers escaped unhurt when a major Pacific winds blew their bus off U. S. 61 near Davenport Iowa. The vehicle plumed down an embankment and into a corn field.

Other areas battered by the storm included sections of near Kansas City; Buckner Sibley, Excelsior Springs, Osage and Downing Mo.

Damage was shared by 20 municipalities on the northern and northeastern edge of the city of St. Louis.

The northern Plains shivered in subzero cold, a major Pacific snowstorm blew inland across snowclad mountains and the East basked in shirtsleeve temperatures.

Drops 35 Degrees

An indication of the topsy-turvy weather was the 62-degree high at Des Moines. After the cold front reached the area the temperature plummeted to 27 with rain and snow.

The cold moist air settled as freezing rain in Minnesota Michigan and Wisconsin. Power and telephone lines snapped under the weight of the ice and falling tree branches. Roads became slick and impassable in parts of Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

Mrs. LBJ Hosts Mayors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has invited 46 mayors to the White House for tea today and a spokesman said "beautification will probably be the main course."

The mayors are in Washington for meetings of the executive committee of the mayors' conference.

Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, Elizabeth Carpenter, said Mrs. Johnson knows a number of the mayors, has met others on beautification travels and has corresponded with some of them on this subject.

Stocks Suggested
For Sons' Future

Q "We're saving for an educational fund for three sons who will reach college age over the next six to ten years. We have 20 shares of International Business Machines and are concerned that the present rate of gain will be insufficient for college needs. Please advise us of stocks with more outstanding growth potential." J.A.

A) I commend you sincerely for your concern about your sons' future. IBM is the dominant factor in the computer business, which should continue to grow rapidly. Because of the expense of producing and marketing the new Series 360 family of machines, earnings gains slowed down last year, but for 1967 and beyond, resumption of a 15-20 per cent growth rate seems probable.

I advise you to hold IBM, which has been one of the finest performers in a bear market. I believe you should diversify, however, and suggest—as future purchases—Avon Products and American Hospital Supply. Both of these stocks should continue to show growth gains in the vicinity of 20 per cent.

Q "Over the past several years, I have dealt with five different brokers. I have never been able to walk into a broker's office and ask to buy the stock of my choice without difficulties. Every time I ask to buy a stock the broker gives me an argument that he has something better. I get such powerful sales talk that I usually do what he says and wind up with a stock on which I lose money. I'm now afraid to walk into a broker's office. Do you think this is just because I'm a woman?" J.B.

A) Not at all. I think it's because you've been very unfortunate in your choice of brokers. Try a new firm and ask for the local manager or managing partner and explain your problem. I feel certain that he will assign you a broker who will confine himself to his main job—which is executing your orders expertly.

Late Yule Fire

Blaze Damages Apartment House

On Franklin St.

An apartment house at 58-60 Franklin Street, owned by Mrs. Samuel Marcus was damaged by fire early today and firemen checked a blaze in a large pile of Christmas trees at the Kingston Point refuse disposal site Tuesday night.

A stairway and attic were involved in flame when firemen arrived at the Franklin Street house, a one and two-story, frame and composition covered structure. Roof and floor areas, sections of roof and siding along with the stairway were damaged.

Second floor areas were damaged by smoke and water and there was some water damage on the first floor.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined, but it is being investigated.

Units from Central and Wiltwyck stations, the Wicks, Excelsior and Wiltwyck volunteers responded to an alarm from Box 1221, Franklin and Prospect Streets at 5:07 a. m. with Chief James M. Brett and Deputy Chief Glyn M. Southard in charge.

Firemen were called at 8:48 p. m. Tuesday for the fire in the Christmas trees. Units from Central and Cornell stations, the Wicks, Union and Cordis companies responded with Deputy Chief Southard in charge. An alarm was sounded from Box 2231, Lindsley Avenue and East Union Street. The blaze, said to be incendiary, was doused with a pump stream.

The Chicago police officer was killed and several persons injured when the wall of a South Side parking lot collapsed under the wind.

The downstate Illinois farmer died when a tornado leveled his home.

At least 13 persons a bus driver and 12 passengers escaped unhurt when a major Pacific winds blew their bus off U. S. 61 near Davenport Iowa. The vehicle plumed down an embankment and into a corn field.

Other areas battered by the storm included sections of near Kansas City; Buckner Sibley, Excelsior Springs, Osage and Downing Mo.

Damage was shared by 20 municipalities on the northern and northeastern edge of the city of St. Louis.

The northern Plains shivered in subzero cold, a major Pacific snowstorm blew inland across snowclad mountains and the East basked in shirtsleeve temperatures.

Drops 35 Degrees

An indication of the topsy-turvy weather was the 62-degree high at Des Moines. After the cold front reached the area the temperature plummeted to 27 with rain and snow.

The cold moist air settled as freezing rain in Minnesota Michigan and Wisconsin. Power and telephone lines snapped under the weight of the ice and falling tree branches. Roads became slick and impassable in parts of Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

Mrs. LBJ Hosts Mayors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has invited 46 mayors to the White House for tea today and a spokesman said "beautification will probably be the main course."

The mayors are in Washington for meetings of the executive committee of the mayors' conference.

Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, Elizabeth Carpenter, said Mrs. Johnson knows a number of the mayors, has met others on beautification travels and has corresponded with some of them on this subject.

Predict Colder Air, Still Above Normal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Extended forecasts for Upstate New York, prepared by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from Thursday through Monday:

Temperatures will be lower than recent days but still above the normal late January levels. The trend for lower temperatures will be sharpest over the western and northern counties. Daytime highs will be mainly from the upper 30s to middle 40s, with nighttime lows in the mid 20s to mid 30s in the north and west and mainly above freezing in the southeast.

Considerable rainy weather is indicated. Showers at beginning are expected to develop into a rain period over the weekend. Some wet snow over the west and north is likely at times. Precipitation will average 1/2 to 1 inch over most sections.

Slimming TV Output

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—The General Electric Co. announced today it would shut down its television manufacturing operations here for one week, beginning February 20.

The company said the 4,400 employees affected by the move would be recalled.

A spokesman said the shut down was caused by a backlog of inventory.

Catholic Teachers Halt Long Walkout

MONTREAL (AP) — Roman Catholic teachers returned to their jobs today in the Yamaska region east of Montreal, ending a walkout which has kept 8,500 children without classroom instructions since Nov. 24.

Norman Reid, president of the union bargaining for the Yamaska teachers, said union members were returning to the schools "in a spirit of revolt and indignation."

"The conflict isn't resolved," he said. "We still consider ourselves on strike but we are going back because of the whip of government injunction."

Political pressure was mounting over the Union Nationale Government's handling of teacher troubles in Montreal, where 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers have been on strike since Jan. 13, closing schools to 217,000 children.

World News In Brief

Report Ginzburg Arrest

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Ginzburg, a Soviet intellectual said to have been instrumental in compiling a "white book" on the Sinyavsky-Daniel trial, is reported under arrest.

The book, published in Western Europe and secretly in the Soviet Union, contains a record of the trial of Soviet authors Andrei D. Sinyavsky and Yuli M. Daniel. They were imprisoned last February for publishing anti-Soviet works abroad.

Bustamante to Retire

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamante, who will be 84 on Feb. 24, will not seek re-election, reliable sources say. He has been Jamaica's only prime minister since the country gained independence from Britain in 1962.

He suffered a stroke in January 1965 and has been largely inactive since then.

Deny Ruffing, Medwick Entry To Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP)—The baseball writers failed to elect any player to Baseball's Hall of Fame today with Joe (Ducky) Medwick, the slugging outfielder of St. Louis' Gashouse Gang, and pitcher Red Ruffing of the New York Yankees missing by just seven votes.

Medwick, Ruffing plus 29 other players will get another chance for election to the elite group this year in a run-off election with the announcement to be made in February. The run-off is not without precedent.

But neither Medwick, who has openly campaigned for entry into the Hall, or Ruffing, who is getting his 18th and final chance to be voted in by the writers, were able to get the required 75 per cent of the 292 votes cast. They each drew 212 votes, missing by seven of the 219 needed. Roy Campanella, the onetime catching great for the Brooklyn Dodgers who has been paralyzed from the waist down since 1958 after an auto accident was third in the balloting with 204 votes.

Traffic Ticket Ruling

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The attorney general of Colorado will be asked to rule on the validity of traffic tickets issued by the Colorado State Patrol.

Dist. Atty. Floyd Marks of Adams County said he will request the ruling from Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar following the action of Judge Abraham Bowling of Adams County declaring the patrol-issued tickets invalid. Judge Bowling's decision came in a drunken driving case. He said he based the ruling on an 1893 Colorado Supreme Court case which held felony and misdemeanor complaints must be verified. State patrol traffic tickets are not sworn to by patrolmen.

Fared Passage

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — State Rep. Chadd Durrett introduced a resolution in the Arkansas House declaring that "the world is flat like a pancake, not round like a ball."

Durrett withdrew his resolution Tuesday.

"I'm afraid it might pass," he said.
